ITALIANS MAY CUT LEAGUE RELATIONS

Rome, Nov. 29.
If the League of Nations' Secretary-General's proposal that the Council of the League meet to discuss the Spanish situation results in such a meeting being held, a situation will arise which will be regarded by Italy as "grave and dangerous." In the opinion of unofficial observers such a situation may constitute grounds for Italy's severance of all relations with the League.

It is claimed here that the Italian and German Governments are entirely within their rights in recognising the rebel junta of General Franco, of Spain, and in a League meeting at which Italy would again figure as an accused would be regarded here as intolerable.—Reuter.

Recognising Franco

Vienna, Nov. 29.
Joint Austro-Hungarian recognition of General Francisco Franco's insurgent government, when the capture of Madrid is completed, is reported to have been decided upon at a conference attended by Austria's Chancellor, Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg and Dr. Schmidt, the Foreign Minister, and Hungary's Prime Minister, Koloman Daranyi and Foreign Minister Koloman de Kamya.—Reuter.

Council Approached

Geneva, Nov. 29.
The League of Nations' Secretary-General has communicated with the members of the League Council, proposing that the Council meet on December 7 or 14, to discuss the alleged intervention in the Spanish civil war by Germany and Italy, as requested by the Spanish Government.

Replies of the Council members are requested by December 1, and the venue of the meeting, though not stated, is expected to be Geneva.—Reuter.

Germany Willing

Berlin, Nov. 29.
Germany is most willing to co-operate in international relief action in Spain, along the lines suggested in the British Parliamentary mission's appeal, according to opinions expressed in well-informed circles. But Germany would insist on the measures being practical and would prefer that action should be taken by a few energetic nations.—Reuter Special.

MARKET PRICES ADVANCE

New York, Nov. 29.
Prices advanced on the New York Stock Market Saturday.

The rise was led by steel and utility issues, but trading continued to be cautious with the foreign situation still causing considerable concern.

In addition, there are expectations of some realising after the week's late advance, while the commodity markets also remain uncertain.

However, business news continues favourable and market sentiment is generally good.

The Bond Market and issues on the Curb Exchange were also higher.

GERMAN TERRITORY TOO SMALL, WARNS PRUSSIAN PREMIER

Berlin, Nov. 29.

Germany is not so weak now as when she entered the World War in 1914, declared General Herman Goering Prime Minister of Prussia and Reich Minister for air, when addressing the National Farmers' Congress at Goslar.

Then, he said, Germany had a cowardly parliament; but now men governed the country he asserted.

Liberal circles. General Goering told the farmers, urged him to give better prices to encourage deliveries of their products, saying that otherwise farmers would hold back their wares and so force prices upward. But he would be a traitor to his people who placed a loaf in the pig trough, General Goering charged.

Germany would be independent of foreign countries with regard to her daily bread as long as the farmers did their duty, he continued.

"The territory in which Germans live is too small for its 60,000,000 inhabitants, and will soon be too strong for the 90,000,000 we want to become," the Minister stated. "Should it become necessary for Der Fuehrer to call upon you, I am convinced you German peasants would take hold of the sword in your strong fists as you have taken hold of the plough," he challenged.

Attacks Bolshevism

Meanwhile, in Berlin, Deputy-leader Rudolf Hess, right-hand man of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, was delivering a fierce attack on Bolshevism.

Before the Great War, he said, Lord Kitchener, the famous British Field Marshal, had told a German officer that he foresaw the coming catastrophe of world conflict. But that foresight did not mean that leaders, owing to lack of breadth of vision, would avoid contemplation of and preparation for such a disaster.

The position was now the same with regard to Bolshevism, Major Hess declared, but the time would come when the world would thank Germany for acting as a bulwark. He thanked Herr Hitler for reducing the Bolshevik menace through the new alliance with Japan.—Reuter.

Cloaked In Mystery To Very Grave

ARMED MEN GUARD ZAHAROFF'S BODY

Paris, Nov. 29.

The atmosphere of mystery, which shrouded him throughout his days, remained about Sir Basil Zaharoff to the last.

The motor hearse, bearing his body, arrived at his estate in Balincourt shortly after midnight, and the gates were shut when it passed through, and guarded by armed keepers.

Several cars arrived at 9 a.m., and left when the simple funeral ceremonies were concluded.

WON'T PANDER TO LABOUR

QUEZON DECLINES LEADERS' PLEA

Manila, Nov. 29.

President Manuel L. Quezon has rejected a request by local labour leaders to recreate the position of Philippine Labour Commissioner to Hawaii.

After consulting Secretary of Labour Ramon Torres, the President said the Honolulu post was "no longer necessary."

Senor Quezon expected to receive a report on conditions of Filipino labourers in Hawaii from Senor Quintin Paredes, Resident Commissioner to the United States, who stopped in Honolulu while en route to resume his duties in Washington.—United Press.

NEUTRALISES POISON GAS, CHECKS FIRE

This new English contrivance is useful in peace and war. It can be employed against fire, which it quenches with an oil spray, cleans streets. In war it neutralises poison gases effectively.

COMING WEDDING

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Dr. Wong Shing-hang, of 724 Nathan Road, and Miss Pansy Wong, nurse, of 10 Chung Kong Street West, 1st floor, Canton.

RUSSIANS WANT NO ALLIANCE OR BLOCS

"WE RELY ON OUR OWN STRENGTH" AND SUPPORT THE LEAGUE

Moscow, Nov. 29.

"We want no alliances or blocs," declared M. V. M. Molotov, President of the Union Council of People's Commissars, speaking to the All-Union Congress to-day. "We are relying on our own strength, which is growing daily."

"We are too busy with our own affairs to be concerned with foreign intrigues. But we are willing to co-operate in peace with all nations within the framework of the League of Nations," he declared.

"Germany left the League in order to obtain a free hand in aggression, and the Japanese-German pact is only a screen against an anti-Soviet war."

"There are two forces to-day," said M. Molotov. "Communism, standing for peace; Fascism, standing for war."—Reuter.

STRIKING CLAIMS

"Our air force," M. Molotov continued, "is the most powerful in the world as regards quality and quantity. Since last year our production has been doubled."

"We have hundreds of air destroyers, capable of a speed of 300 miles per hour, which can drop a battalion of fully armed men by parachute, ready to attack an enemy in the rear within ten minutes."

"Who betrays the Germans if they attack the Soviet Union," he concluded.—Reuter.

INCREASING ARMAMENT

Moscow, Nov. 29.
Admiral V. R. Orlov, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Navy, to-day declared that the Soviet's armament increases in armed forces from January 1, 1933, to January 1, 1936.

Submarines, he said, had been increased by 75 per cent, and other warships by 200 per cent. Naval aviation had been strengthened by the addition of planes to 500 per cent of the 1933 total. Naval bases had been doubled and coast defences more than doubled.

"In the face of the German and Japanese menaces Russia cannot leave her coasts undefended," he warned.—United Press.

REBELS RENEW MADRID PUSH

GENERAL OFFENSIVE ON ALL SIDES OF CAPITAL

Talavera, Nov. 29.

Clear weather to-day was the signal for a general Nationalist offensive against the capital, and this morning attacks were made on all fronts, backed up by artillery and aircraft bombardments. The toughest fighting is developing in Paseo de Rosales, North-west Madrid, and the Tetuan quarter, in the North.—Reuter Special.

CITY GROWS APPREHENSIVE

Madrid, Nov. 29.

A sunny break in the bad weather this morning made the citizens of Madrid apprehensive of further intensive bombing, but they were somewhat reassured when the Government's own planes took the initiative, circled in fighting formation, and flew off towards the enemy lines.

Moorish cavalry attacks in the north-west sector and an early morning thrust in the neighbourhood of University City were both strongly repulsed by the militia, who assert the insurgent casualty lists were heavy.

MOLLISON ON FLIGHT FOR NEW RECORD

With a new flying partner, a man this time, Jim Mollison is attempting another record. He aims to fly from London to the Cape and back in five days. Originally he planned to take Mrs. Amy Mollison as co-pilot, but they have since separated.

MOLLISON REPORTED HELD UP

BUT CROYDON IS NOT INFORMED CAPE AND BACK IN 5 DAYS?

Marseilles, Nov. 29.

Jim Mollison, three times a conqueror of the Atlantic, accompanied by a relief pilot, Mollner, arrived here from Croydon at 12.52 p.m., having left Croydon a 9.32 a.m., on a voyage in which he hopes to fly to Capetown and back in five days.—Reuter.

MOLLISON RETURNING?

Paris, Nov. 29.

The authorities at Le Bourget have received a telegram stating that Jim Mollison is returning to England from Marseilles, owing to trouble developing in his petrol supply system.—Reuter.

CROYDON NOT INFORMED

London, Nov. 29.
Croydon officials discount the report that James Mollison is returning to the airport.—Reuter.

News from other sectors of the Government's lines is equally encouraging, from the defenders point of view, and at several points the Government troops' manoeuvres are seriously threatening the insurgents' flanks.—Reuter.

Alicante Burning

Gibraltar, Nov. 29.

Half Alicante is aflame, following five hours' bombardment last night. Enormous damage has been done to the port, fortifications, barracks and station by incendiary bombs.—Reuter.

Rocket Propaganda

Madrid, Nov. 29.

Rocket propaganda has been introduced, for the first time, by the Government.

Invented by ingenious pyrotechnicians in Valencia, a rocket is fired towards enemy advance posts and releases, as it explodes, numbers of pamphlets, written in Spanish and Arabic and designed to reach the Legionnaires and Moors who are fighting for the rebels, explaining "the criminal intentions of their leaders."—Reuter Special.

Nationalists Checked

Madrid, Nov. 29.

General Emilio Kieker, so-called "mystery man" of the Spanish civil war, to-day asserted the Nationalists had lost the fight for the capital. He did not believe they could enter Madrid unless Herr Hitler or Signor Mussolini sent them reinforcements. However, he appealed to the United States to send them gas masks, in anticipation of extreme methods by the Nationalists as a climax to Madrid's siege, which is believed to be approaching.—United Press.

Fugitive Steamship

Gibraltar, Nov. 29.

The Spanish steamer Arnebalmedit put in here for shelter after a pursuit by three insurgent armed trawlers which fired on her in the Straits of Gibraltar.—Reuter.

Arab Bandits Again Active

Jerusalem, Nov. 29.

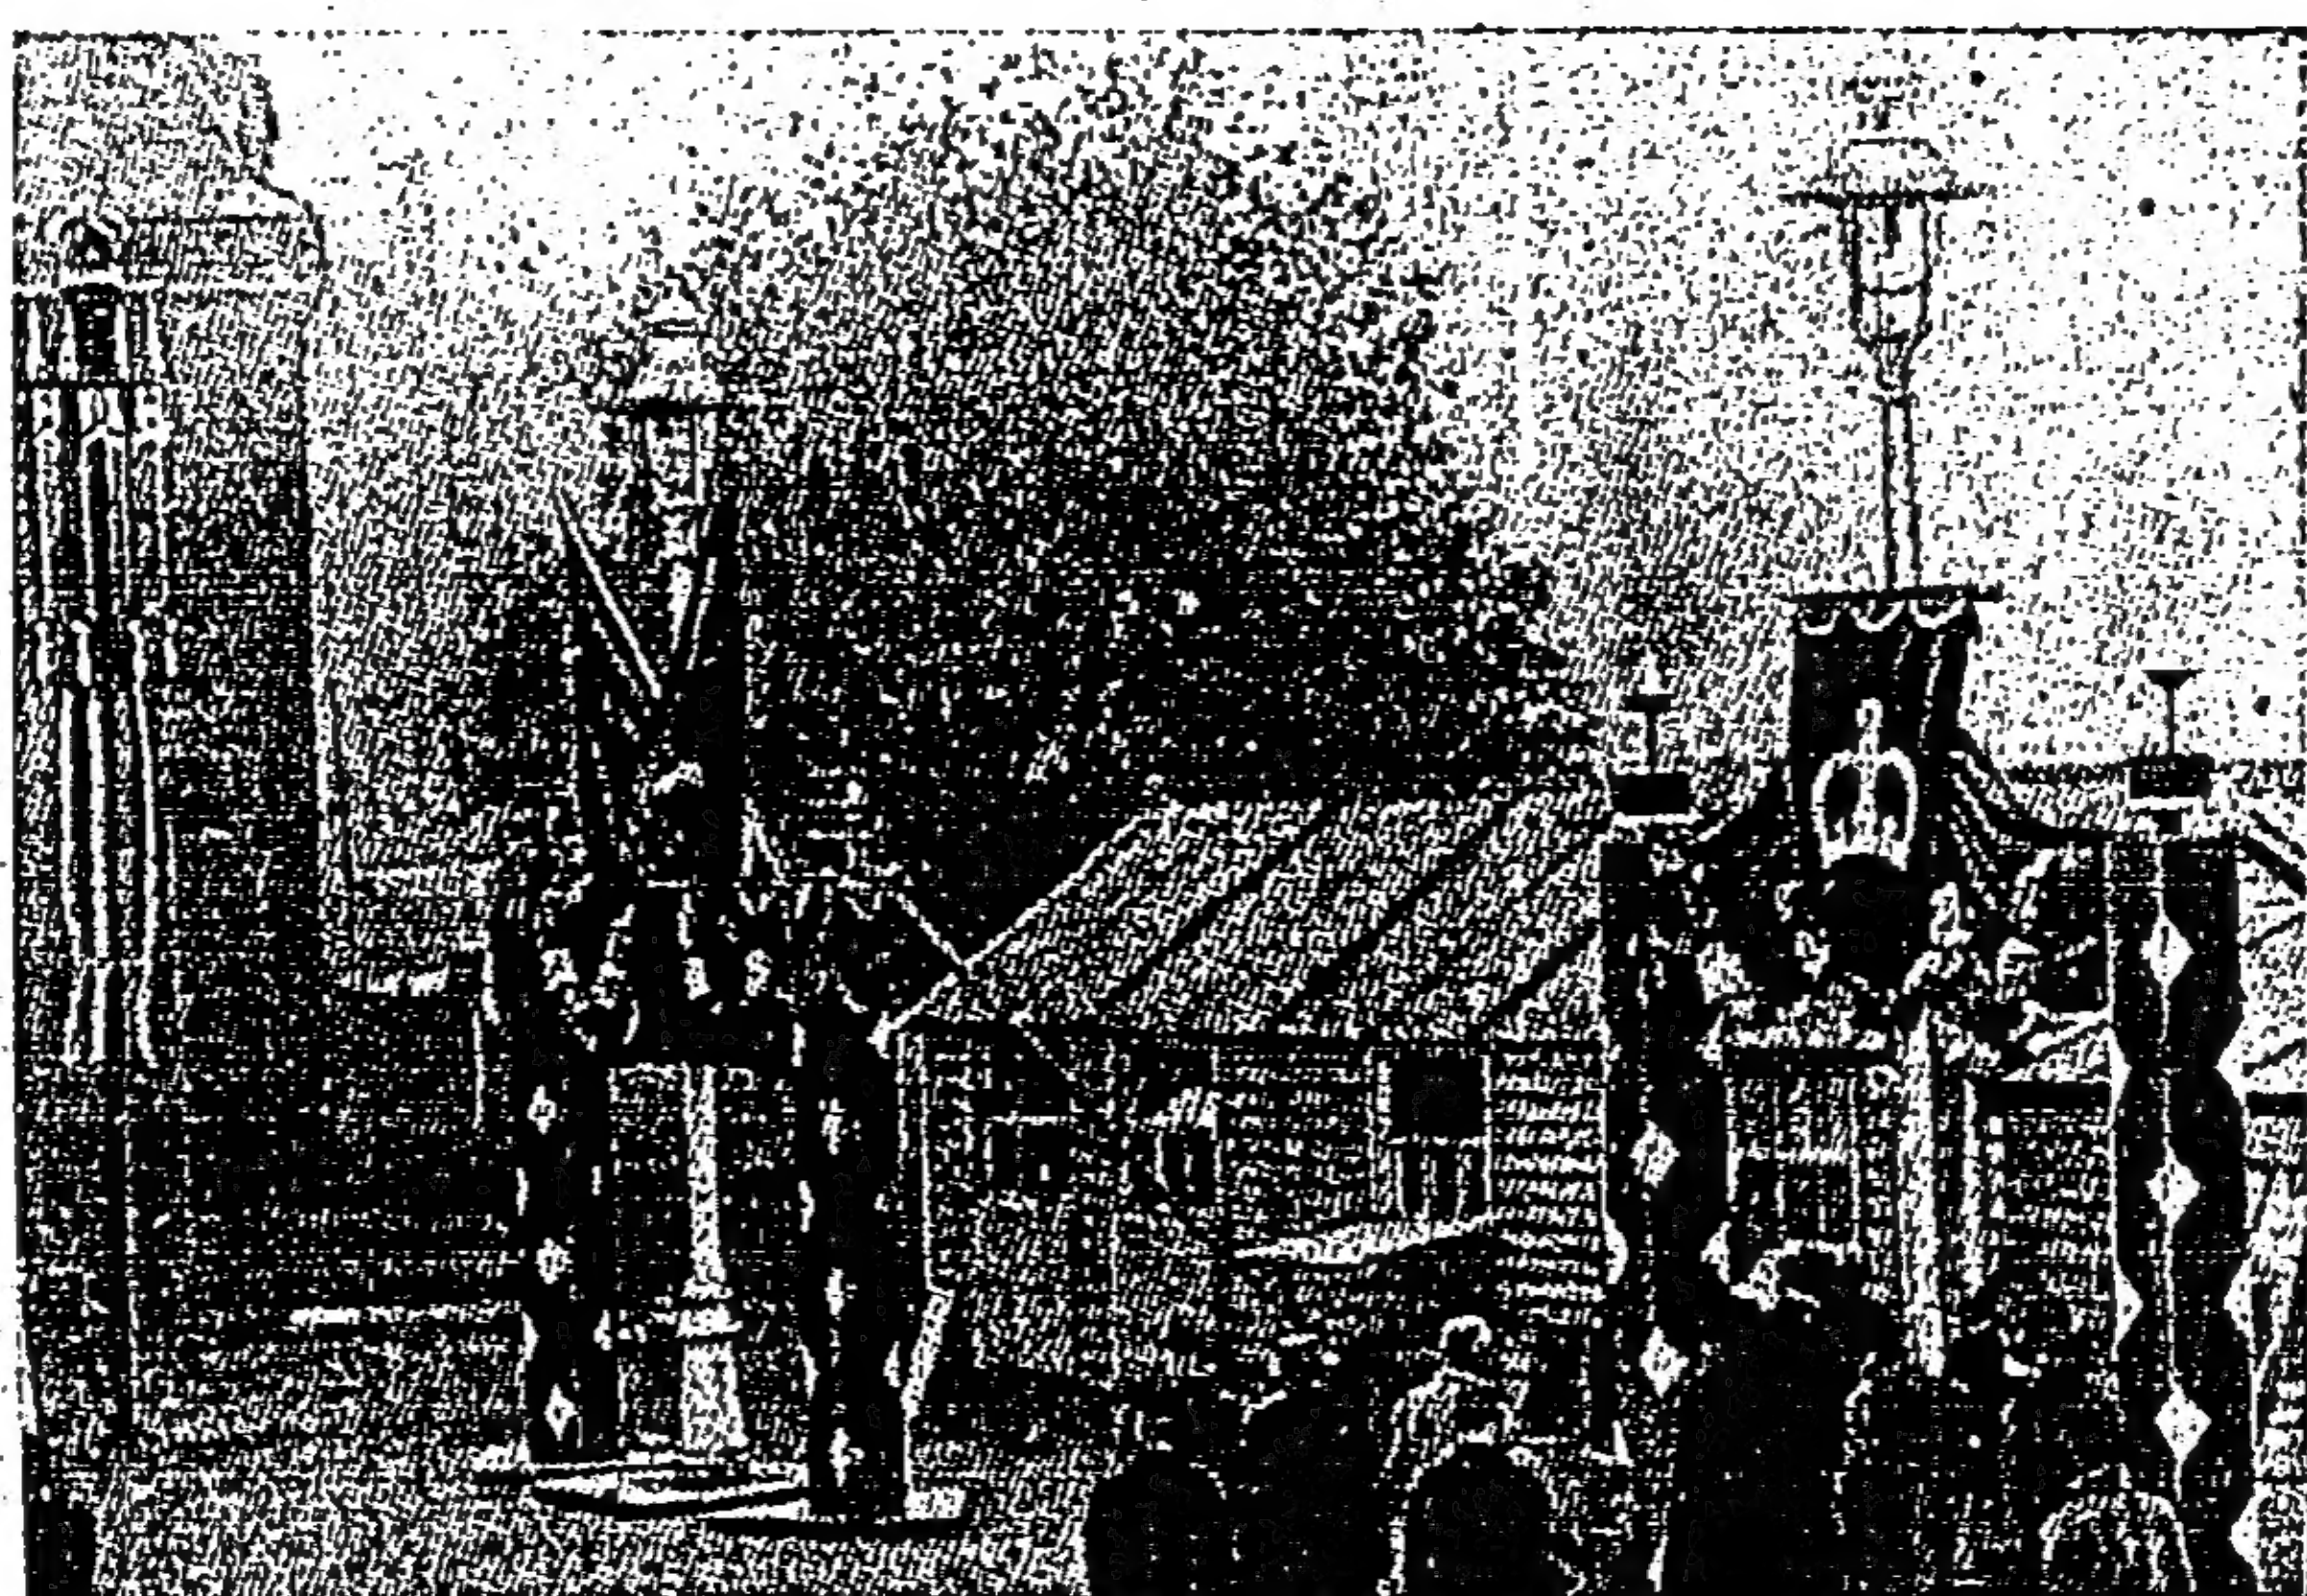

Arab highwaymen held up eight motor cars on the main road between Nablus and Tulkarem last night and robbed their occupants, including an Englishman and a German.

They erected a barbed wire in the roadway and, armed with rifles, covered their victims, collected their valuables, and then vanished into the night.—Reuter.

RESIDENTS' ROOMS ENTERED

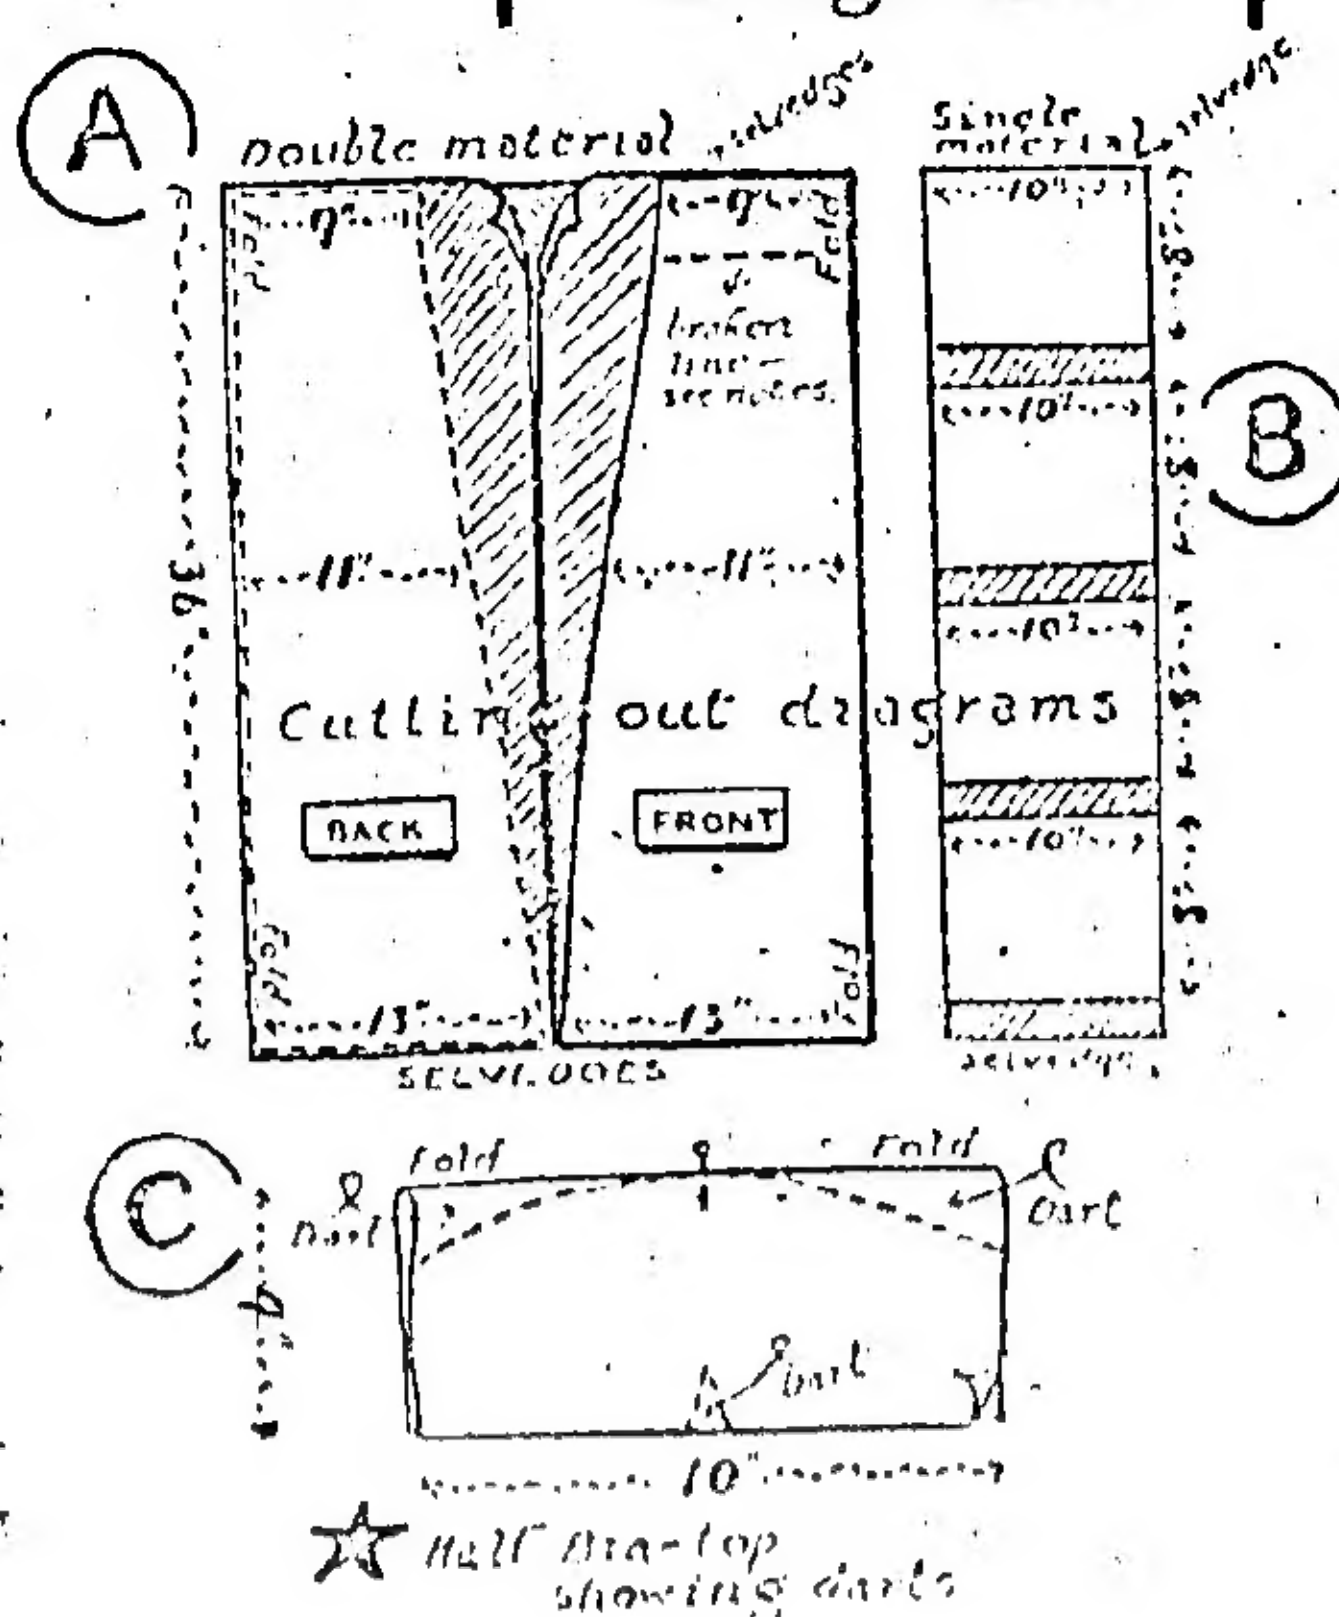

This morning, a report was made to the police to the effect that two rooms in the Gloucester Hotel had been entered some time since yesterday and property valued at $200 stolen. The report states that Mr. and Mrs. Shelton, of Room 403, and Mr. Walsh, of Room 405, were the victims of the theft.

PREPARING FOR CORONATION

Hongkong will soon be considering schemes of decoration in connection with King Edward's Coronation. Above picture shows members of the Westminster City Council inspecting suggested designs to be used along the Coronation route in London. Blue, lavender and gold figure in the colour scheme.

Follow the Diagrams.

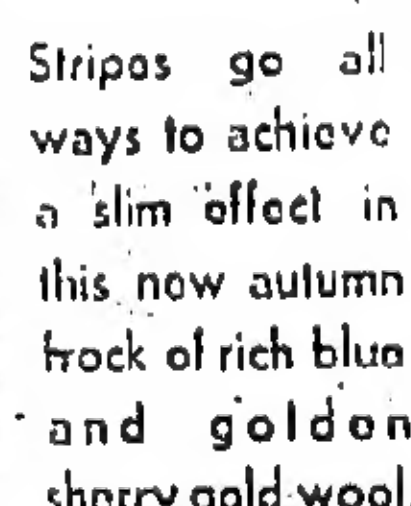

Deal with a second piece in the same way, and pin the two pieces together by the short ends, leaving 1 inch the rear edge at the top to allow for shaping.

Finishing Touches

Pin shoulder straps, which can be made from simple material or ribbon, to garment, and try on inside out. Get a friend to pin up the side seams, fitting them closely to figure above the waistline, and loosely over the hips, where extra seam allowance has been provided. Tack and stitch the side seams, and press them towards back. Turn away the collar, and press them, too, towards back. Turn away any pieces of material or bias binding, and fasten with hooks and eyes. Turn up hem to required length.

SPHINX TELLS OF A PHARAOH'S DREAM

Cairo, Nov. 20.

Hundreds of labourers transported from Upper Egypt, digging away the huge banks of sand which surrounded the Sphinx on its eastern side, have made a thrilling discovery—an eighteenth dynasty stela (tablet) of white limestone bearing 27 lines of hieroglyphics and measuring 6ft 8ins by 12ft.

It records that the stela was erected by Amen Hotep the Second as a memorial of his pilgrimage to the Sphinx, the fabulous monster which gazes across the valley of the Nile, when he ascended the throne at the age of 18.

It relates how he drove in his chariot from Memphis and visited the Great Pyramids, which are monuments to Sheps and Khefen.

The hieroglyphics state that Amen Hotep possessed herculean strength—that nobody else was able to pull his bow, relate his deeds of prowess and horsemanship, and record the fact that he invented a kind of arrow never before used in Egypt.

50,000,000 Visitors For New York

1939 WORLD FAIR, New York, Nov. 20.

"Building the World of Tomorrow" will be the central theme of the New York World's Fair of 1939, commemorating the 150th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as first President of the United States. Fifty million visitors are expected during the first year.

Construction of buildings to cost $125,000,000 will begin in December, on 1,216 acres on the shore of Flushing Bay, Long Island.

Surrounding a central Theme Tower 250 feet high will be exhibits divided into four chief groups, illustrating the advances of the modern world and a section reserved for amusement and entertainment. With the four groups will be ten zones, depicting a phase of the fair's central theme, devoted to clothing, shelter, education, government and co-operation, the arts, the basic industries, health, recreation, sustenance, and public and social service. Each of the ten zones will have a central exhibit, and special structures illustrative of the industrial, commercial and social problems and achievements of the world to-day.

SUN GOD'S PLEA

He dreamed that the Sun God spoke to him, begging him to clear away the sand from around the Sphinx and saying:

"Thou shalt be to me a protector. For any manner is as if I were all in all my limbs. The sand of the desert upon which I am have reached me; turn to me to have that done which I have desired; knowing that thou art my son, my protector. Come, higher! Higher! I am with thee! I am thy leader." Thutmose cleared away the sand, built a small temple between the paws, and restored the lower portions of the monument.

The Sphinx was again cleared of sand by the Pharaohs, who also restored some of the lower portions and carried on the rites of the ancient Egyptians in the small temple directly in front of the monument. Reuter.

Are They Yours?

Symptoms You Cannot Afford To Ignore.

You do not need to be told when you are run-down; languor, depression, irritability, loss of interest in work, frequent headaches and other pains are easily recognizable symptoms. Whether man or woman you cannot afford to ignore such warnings; take heed when they first become apparent, for if neglected serious health troubles will almost surely follow.

Your urgent need is a blood tonic, for it is upon the blood that all the organs and tissues of the body depend for the nourishment necessary to enable them to carry out their various functions. The tonic you should use for the purpose, there is none better, is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have not only been effecting remarkable cures over a period of more than fifty years, but have received the endorsement of many skilled physicians whose experience has convinced them of the health restoring qualities of the pills.

The prescription of a doctor, an M.D. of Edinburgh University, and equally good for both men and women, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may also be given with wholly beneficial results to growing boys and girls. Obtainable at chemists everywhere.

BRACELET WORN BY CLEOPATRA

From A Special Correspondent

Cuckfield (Sussex), Nov. 25.

A BRACELET said to have been worn by Cleopatra, last independent Queen of Egypt, who died 2,000 years ago, and other jewellery has been stolen from a case in a motor-car left in Harriet Street, Lowndes Square, S.W.

Its owner, Miss Gertrude Pickering, a member of a well-known Sussex family, lives at Court House Farm, an ancient residence near Cuckfield Church.

To-night Miss Pickering told me that the bracelet was discovered some years ago by her fiancé, Count Byron de Prorok, when he led the Franco-American archaeological expedition to North Africa.

"An ordinary person looking at the bracelet would attach little value to it. It consists of bonyx, emeralds and pearls. The stones are uncut and unpolished—in the raw state in which they were discovered. They are all threaded together on a gold wire."

"PRICELESS"

"I can put no value on the bracelet—which is a museum piece and priceless. The thief will find it a little embarrassing to sell."

"All my personal jewellery—rings, watches, cigarette cases and

KITCHENMAID'S NOVEL WINS

£400

LIFE ON NORTH SEA ISLAND

New York, Nov. 21.

Miss Sally Salminen, a pretty Finnish Kitchenmaid working here, has won a prize of £400 offered by a Finnish bookpublishing firm for the best novel written in the Finnish language. She was informed of her success in a cable from Helsinki to-day.

Miss Salminen came to America six years ago from the Andland Islands in the North Sea, and her novel, "Katrina," is based upon memories of her life there in a little village of 400 inhabitants, mostly fishermen and sailors. She will shortly return to her island home to revisit her family and receive the award.

She said to-day that she had been a year writing her book in snatches of leisure in between her housework. She modestly admitted that she had never had a formal education, but said she had always liked to read, especially books of a scientific nature.

Soviet Restores Glory Cathedral Ivan the Terrible's Vanity Built

Moscow, Nov. 25.

St. Basil's Cathedral on Red Square, most Asiatic and picturesque building in Moscow, will be restored to its original appearance just as it was when built by Ivan the Terrible in celebration of his victory over Kazan in the middle of the 16th century.

A popular legend records that Ivan blinded the architect when the cathedral was completed, to prevent his building anything else so beautiful, but whether this is true or not, the ancient structure remains one of the unique structures of the world.

Each dome is of a different shape and colour, but age has dimmed the tones, and inside the ancient frescoes in many places are hidden under many layers of later origin.

D. P. Sukhov, Soviet architect, has begun the work of restoration, based on a detailed study of the architecture and decoration of the church.

Difficulties involved are shown by the discovery that in the central part of the cathedral the original architecture is concealed under rough putty and painting done in the 19th century.—United Press.

World Race For Sea Power

35,000-TON VESSELS

By A Naval Correspondent

THE French Government has, I learn, decided to build a third battleship of the 35,000-ton class, mainly because of the rapid development of the German Navy.

This will raise to five the number of French battleships laid down since 1932.

Details of the four previous vessels are as follows:

Name of Ship	Began	Displ. tons	Speed knots	Big guns
Dunkerque . . .	1932	25,500	29½	8-12in.
Strasbourg . . .	1931	25,500	29½	8-12in.
Richelieu . . .	1935	31,000	30	12-13in.
Jean Bart . . .	1936-7	35,000	30	12-13in.

The new French programme further includes a large cruiser and a group of submarines.

Germany is completing two 20,000-ton battleships, the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, and is reported to have begun two vessels of 35,000 tons. Italy will shortly launch the 35,000-ton ships Vittorio Veneto and Littorio.

Great Britain's only post-war battleships are the Nelson and Rodney, launched in 1925, but the new vessels, King George V. and Prince of Wales, are to be laid down in January. In his speech at the Navy League dinner on Tuesday the First Lord indicated that they would be ships of 35,000 tons.

Two battleships of this tonnage are to be started in the United States early next year, and according to reports from Tokyo Japan is to lay down one or two ships of the same size. Altogether, therefore, 17 battleships, with an aggregate of 500,000 tons, may be under construction in the near future.

Robert Donat's £120,000 For Four Films

Robert Donat is to play opposite Marlene Dietrich in "Knight Without Armour."

Mr. Donat's asthma is completely subdued after a prolonged illness during which he could have earned £60,000. He was examined recently by Lord Horder, and pronounced fit.

He will begin work soon on what will be the first of four pictures to be made for London Film Productions on a basis which may yield to him £30,000 per picture.

DIOCESAN BAZAAR

SUCCESSFUL SALE OPENED BY LADY CALDECOTT.

The fourth Annual Diocesan Bazaar of the Chung Hua Shing Kung Wai was held on Saturday in the grounds of the Bishop's House and St. Paul's College. The bazaar was opened at eleven o'clock by Lady Caldecott.

The Chung Hua Shing Kung Wai is an independent church in communion with the Church of England, and, in Hongkong, Bishop Hall is bishop of both. Once a year, at this bazaar, a special effort is made to raise funds for the continuance and extension of the work done by the church.

Lady Caldecott, who was accompanied by Captain W. J. R. Craig, was escorted to the platform by Mr. Tsang Koon-cook, Chairman of the Diocesan Bazaar Committee. After a short prayer by the Rev. Lee Kau-yau, Mr. Tsang said:

Object of Bazaar

"It gives me the greatest pleasure to say a few words on this occasion. The object of the Bazaar is, as you all know, to raise funds to do a number of charitable deeds, such as the maintenance of doctors, institution of schools, and relief of poverty. This bazaar, therefore, deserves our warm support, for withdrawal of it not only strips our poorer friends of the privileges that make them human beings, but also loses three golden opportunities for ourselves—the opportunity to receive Jesus Christ in the person of our insignificant brethren, the opportunity to demonstrate our life and energy by work, and last but not the least the opportunity to make us men."

"For what is the difference between a man and a wild animal? Does it lie in reason? Certainly not. A monkey and a bee possess a certain amount of reasoning power. What is the difference then? It lies in sacrifice and social service. If you reflect the records of history you will find that the only living thing that is perfectly willing to render services to his fellowmen is man."

"This year is a very difficult one. Financial depression has reigned in the Colony, and every one is trying to tighten his or her purse strings. But still we can see men and women, both European and Chinese, working side by side with the greatest enthusiasm for society and trying to seize the three opportunities I have mentioned above. This is a thing devoutly to be wished."

"Before I conclude, however, I should like to take this opportunity of thanking all the churches and all the schools that have contributed to make this bazaar a success. I should also like to thank members of the Committee, particularly the Hon. Secretaries, Rev. Lee and Rev. Martin, for their guidance and co-operation without which this Bazaar would undoubtedly end in total failure. Finally, on behalf of the Committee, I wish to express our heartfelt thanks to Lady Caldecott for her kindness in consenting to come to open this bazaar."

Mr. Martin's Reply

In the absence of Bishop Hall, the Rev. E. W. L. Martin seconded the Chairman's vote of thanks to Lady Caldecott.

In declaring the bazaar open, Lady Caldecott said she had much pleasure in doing so and wished the bazaar every success.

Among those present at the opening ceremony were the Rev. H. W. Boines, the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Higgs, the Rev. and Mrs. G. K. Carpenter, the Rev. and Mrs. E. W. L. Martin, the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Bennett, the Rev. and Mrs. T. Sze-fong, the Rev. and Mrs. Chung Yau-lan, the Rev. and Mrs. Lee Kau-yau, the Rev. and Mrs. Tsang Koon-cook, Mr. E. G. Stewart, of St. Paul's School, and

MADRID IN RUINS

CITIZENS IN SORRY FLIGHT

London, Nov. 28, 8 p.m.

The six members of the British House of Commons, including two Conservatives, one Liberal and three Labour members, who have gone to Spain as a party of investigators have communicated with His Majesty's Government through the British Embassy in Madrid as follows: "After spending some days at Barcelona, Valencia—seat of the Spanish Government—and in Madrid, where we have been accorded the fullest facilities that circumstances have permitted to acquaint ourselves with the situation, we venture to issue an appeal. We doubt if the magnitude of the appalling catastrophe that faces the civilian population of Madrid is generally realized. We make no comment upon the military situation, but a city of a million inhabitants being subjected to attack from the ground and air. It is so far invested that only one road is and has been for twenty-one days past open to the outside world. The improvised Government machine has its hands full and its resources pledged in the conflict. To the million inhabitants have been added hundreds of thousands of refugees. More than one quarter of the city is partially destroyed and uninhabitable. Civilian casualties are extremely heavy. The situation is at work and epidemic seem inevitable. We urge the need of immediate and large scale action by neutral Powers, working through an international organization. Evacuation and partial maintenance of women, children and non-combatants is urgent in order to mitigate it cannot prevent—unspeakable horrors."

NEW LOCARNO PROSPECTS

In his reference to the nation's military obligations last week, Mr. Anthony Eden made it clear that Britain is still anxious to see a new Western European settlement concluded, to take the place of the Locarno Pact, which Germany has denounced. A well-known commentator, writing from home, however, hazards the view that the prospects of a new Locarno being negotiated are not too bright. There are two elements in the proposals for the new Treaty that to British eyes seem of vital importance. First, owing to the advent of air power, Britain is no longer an island, invulnerable to attack, and therefore, though ten years ago she was quite willing for the sake of peace in Western Europe to guarantee others' security without obtaining any reciprocal guarantee for herself, to-day she is asking that obligations of this character should be equally binding on all. In the second place, it is realised that it would be a mistake to tie the hands of France and Great Britain by a Western Pact in such a way as to leave Germany free in Central and Eastern Europe. Moreover, Italy appears to be definitely opposed to making the guarantees of the new Locarno reciprocal and Germany to allowing any reference to Eastern Europe in a pact that Herr Hitler contends should be confined to the West alone. There have been long delays in the negotiations, but the ball is kept rolling by occasional notes of enquiry from Italy and Germany. During the last few weeks, two events have occurred which are likely to have a profound effect on the future of the new Locarno. Belgium has made a striking announcement about her own foreign policy, which, whatever else it may signify, clearly reveals her dislike of regional agreements and her determination, so far as her own armaments can secure that end, to remain neutral in "the next war." She will abide by obligations already incurred, and especially the League of Nations Covenant—but she will not add to them—especially in the form of regional pacts. The Italian and German Foreign Ministers have met in Berlin to see how far their conflicting interests, e.g. in the Danube Valley, may be reconciled, and how far harmony can be achieved in their respective foreign policies. It is very probable that Belgian coldness and Italian and German veiled opposition to the new Locarno may result in the whole idea being abandoned. Though this may appear at first sight to be a disaster, it could be a blessing in disguise, if it brought the peace-loving nations away from reliance on regional pacts back to the League of Nations, which, if faithfully interpreted, would give all that the regional pact promises—and more.

RACE PURITY is JUST A MYTH

says Lord Raglan, who has made Anthropology a life-study.

with fair hair and blue eyes. The last two, taking mankind as a whole, are very uncommon characteristics.

 Anthropologists, in fact, treat the races of man very much as they might the various breeds of dogs and pigeons. But while the breeds of dogs and pigeons have different points which can be nicely sorted out, unfortunately this is not the case with man.

It would be most convenient for our classification if all black men were short; if all yellow men had round heads; and if all white men had fair hair—but this does not happen. The Negroes include the Nilotics and the Pygmies, who are the tallest and the shortest people on earth. Most of the yellow peoples are round-headed, but quite a lot of them are very long-headed. In Europe many people combine a very white skin with very black hair.

 It has to be recognised, then, that there are very few people in the world who can be said to be of pure race. It is clearly absurd, therefore, to lay down the law about the mental qualities of particular human groups while even their physical characteristics are so ill-defined and little understood. The politician and the "patriot" rush in where the scientist fears to tread.

Roughly-speaking, anthropologists divide mankind into six races.

Of these two are black, the Negroid and the Australoid, distinguished from each other by the Negroid having woolly hair and the Australoid wavy hair.

Then comes the yellow or Mongoloid race, which includes the people of Eastern Asia and the "Indians" of America. This race has a yellow or tawny skin, high cheekbones, and black, straight hair.

Coming nearer home, we find three races: Of these the most numerous is the Mediterranean or brown race with a sallow or light brown skin, short and slight body, black wavy hair, and a long head with a narrow forehead and thin sharp-featured face. It is found in Northern India, Persia, North Africa, and Southern Europe, and has many representatives in the British Isles.

The Alpine race is found throughout the inland parts of Europe and Asia Minor, and is predominant in many European countries, including France and Germany. In Britain, though less common, it is fairly numerous. Its members are usually short and rather squat, with round heads, snub noses, and straight dark hair.

The last race, the Nordic, is much the least numerous, and is almost confined to the shores of the Baltic and the North Seas. Its members are tall, long-headed,

Parts of South America are as hot as any part of Africa, yet the Indians who have lived there for untold centuries are not black, but yellowish brown. Conversely, the Tasmanians had lived probably for many thousand years in a climate like that of England, yet they were black, or nearly so.

In Europe there are no real racial divisions. The Germans and the French are two political groups of mixed racial type. The Germans are, roughly, two-thirds Alpine and one-third Nordic, while the French are something like half Alpine, one-third Mediterranean, and one-sixth Nordic.

The original Celts, who conquered half Europe, were largely Nordics, yet the British "Celts" of to-day are chiefly Mediterranean, whereas the Bretons are chiefly Alpine. Similarly, the Jews of Europe, who are mostly descended from converts made by Jewish missionaries at the beginning of the Christian era, are of very mixed but chiefly Alpine type.

 The whole idea that there are innate mental differences between people of different races is based upon prejudice rather than upon fact. This applies not merely to alleged differences between European races, but to alleged differences between whites, blacks and yellows.

Intelligence tests carried out in Australia and South Africa have shown that black children are not inferior in intelligence to white children. These results have caused some surprise, but there is no reason why they should. Intelligence in children is the result of quick sight and quick hearing.

Every child born with good eyes and good ears is born intelligent, though in most cases the child is soon made stupid by disease, dull surroundings and dogmatic teaching.

So-called racial differences, so far as our evidence goes, are merely differences in upbringing. Nationalism exists and thrives on the entirely false belief that these differences are innate and unalterable.

How is it, then, that we often can or think we can tell a Jew from a Christian, or a Frenchman from a German? The answer is that every human group, whether religious, linguistic, or even professional, has its characteristic facial expression.

Many Jews have a trick of drawing up the corners of the nostrils; many Frenchmen have a trick of slightly pursing their lips and raising their brows; and we have our own tricks by which foreigners recognise us. In the same way Mohammedans tend to have a rather gloomy, fatalistic expression.

Anyone can stand in front of a looking-glass and make himself look like a conventional Frenchman, Jew, or servant-major, but it is impossible for a man of the Alpine race to make himself look like a Nordic, even if he is Hitler.

 A PEOPLE still, whose common ties are gone;
 Who, mixed with every race,
 are lost in none.

Dare To Be A Lowbrow

CAN you read the works of Dickens, Thackeray, Scott, and the other classic novelists from cover to cover, with complete enjoyment? No? Neither can I.

Can you walk through any great picture gallery, gazing in rapt admiration at all sorts of more or less tinsel sounds, but for the life of me I cannot tell whether the pictures of the brush? Frankly, I cannot.

I do not brag about my want of appreciation of the work of the great painters. It is a defect in my education. All my life I have been too busy at my own particular job to acquire sufficient knowledge of the principles and traditions of art to enjoy myself in an art gallery.

While, as I say, this is nothing to boast about, it is certainly nothing to be ashamed of, and I refuse absolutely to apologise for my ignorance of things which I have never had the time or opportunity to learn.

It is the same with music. I listen to the wireless to all sorts of more or less tinsel sounds, but for the life of me I cannot tell whether the tunes which please me are good music or bad.

A HOPELESS PHILISTINE

I like any kind of joyful noise. Seldom can I give a name to any piece of music unless I have been told it beforehand. Several times I have listened to playing which has delighted me, and been told afterwards that it was something from Chopin or Brahms. No one was more surprised than I was. As far as my musical taste goes it might just as easily have been a merry jig from Jack Hylton or Henry Hall.

Even as regards eating and drinking there are similar conventions which "the best people" are supposed to obey through inborn superiority of taste. Here, again, I am afraid I am a hopeless Philistine. I would rather eat a tasty saveloy than the choicest caviare and I like cabbage far better than asparagus. When it comes to drinking, the only beverage I really enjoy is beer.

When I was younger I used to feel a little ashamed of my failure to appreciate the things which superior people told me were beyond all question the best. Somehow I felt that I was a low fellow with vulgar tastes.

But I have lived long enough to know that a man's genuine likes or dislikes are his own, not to be altered by copying the habits of other people, and that to stick to the things he genuinely enjoys is the only way to get his rightful share of the pleasures of life.

"TOO CLEVER"

Of course, if you follow my plan you will sometimes be sneered at. By fools, it is true, but they will sneer. The sneerers will be people called highbrows. You have no doubt met them. They are a peculiar breed. Do not confuse a "highbrow" with a man, or it may be a woman, of lofty taste and culture, wide reading and profound knowledge. For, you see, no man ever calls himself a highbrow. It is an epithet bestowed upon him by ordinary chaps like you and me.

If we meet him in a public-house or a club, shall we say, we instinctively dislike him. Something in his speech and manner freezes us. Indeed, I always wonder where the highbrow can possibly feel at home. If he is in the company of really intellectual people he is just as uneasy there. They like him no better than we do. They gauge to a nicety his mental calibre, which is seldom high.

The highbrow is happiest when he can gather around him a group of people, budding highbrows themselves, who will hang upon his every word with awed attention, remarking when he has finished talking that he is "too clever for them" and his conversation "above their heads." Such compliments as these he swallows greedily.

It is all very silly, because ten to one he has been spouting a lot of rubbish about science, philosophy, literature, winning the respect of his audience because he has a smattering of these subjects of which they know nothing at all.

In fact, the highbrow is not a man of exceptional intellect or culture, but just an intellectual snob. The lengths he will go to in order to keep up his pretence of intellectuality are almost beyond belief. There are people who parade in their bookcases the works of authors who are "nice to know," while stacking hidden cupboards with the books they really like reading which do not bear the classic stamp.

BOOKS FOR SHOW

A man I knew, when he married and set up a home, went and asked a clergyman what books a man of taste and education ought to display on his shelves. Suitably advised, he straightway bought the lot in hand—some bindings. That was ten years ago, and there the books are to-day, as good as new, never having been opened except perhaps once in a way by visiting friends.

It is not that this man dislikes reading. On the contrary, he devours several books a week. They are mostly of the "thriller" type, detective stories, and so on. These do not adorn his bookshelves where do luxe editions of Shakespeare, Milton, and Carlyle stand in all their splendour. The best joke of all is to see this precious humbug show his friends round his library. He has learned a few wisecracks, and just enough literary patter to save him from making a

Home Secretary May Stop 'Black Cap' Farce

By A Special Correspondent

JUDGES may soon be given the right to avoid passing the death sentence in cases where circumstances make it unlikely that the sentence will be carried out.

When Parliament reassembles Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, will be pressed to do away with the death sentence in these cases. There is reason to believe he sympathises with the demand, although there are administrative difficulties in the way.

The most important is that it would be left to the judge to decide in which cases it was "unlikely" the sentence would be executed. The "prerogative of mercy" is exercised only by the King acting on the advice of the Home Secretary.

A plan to avoid what has been called the "solemn farce" of donning the black cap and reading the words of the death sentence will be suggested.

that all murder cases should be adjourned after the guilt of the accused has been established by the verdict of the jury or a plea of guilty.

During the adjournment the Home Secretary would decide whether the death sentence should be passed.

RAPID REPRIEVES

I understand that this and several other plans are being examined by Home Office experts. Similar proposals have been brought forward in the past, but rejected on the ground of impracticability.

Sir John Simon has introduced the innovation of rapid reprieves, avoiding the customary delay of weeks between sentence and commutation. He intends to continue this policy in suitable cases.

Sir John was responsible for the quickest reprieve on record, when, within eighteen hours, he swept aside the death sentence passed in March on Mrs. Carmen Swann for the murder of her eight-year-old daughter.

In other cases Sir John commuted the death sentence within 24 hours, two days, four days and three days. The case that brings up anew the question of avoiding the formality of sentence is that of Hilda Queere, sentenced at the Old Bailey last week for murdering her four-year-old son and reprieved within two days.

PEER'S AUNT IN SLANDER SUIT

"VERY SERIOUS ALLEGATIONS"

SETTLEMENT AND APOLOGY

A slander action against the Hon. Barbara Loris Yorke-Buller, aunt of Lord Churston, of Chesterfield House, Mayfair, was settled before Mr. Justice Swift in the King's Bench Division recently.

The plaintiff was Mrs. Johanna Augusta Beardslee-Grundy, of Manor Cottage, Buckland, near Arton Clinton, Bucks.

For the plaintiff, Mr. C. L. Henderson said that he was a term of settlement that he should make a statement.

He did not propose to call attention to the specific allegation in the statement of claim and in the defence; it would suffice to say that very serious allegations had been made by the defendant against the plaintiff, and it was absolutely necessary that Mrs. Beardslee-Grundy should bring the action in order to vindicate her character.

It was never her intention that she should bring this action for the purpose of making money; her sole desire was to make it known that there was no substance in the allegations made against her.

"In the defence, the plea of justification," continued Mr. Henderson, "is not raised, but there is a plea of 'privilege'."

APOLOGY AND COSTS

"In the circumstances Mr. Norman Birkett, K.C., with whom Mr. G. O. Slade appears for the defendant, is prepared to make a full apology on behalf of his client, who is willing to pay the plaintiff the full amount of her costs as between solicitor and client."

"In these circumstances the plaintiff is glad to take the opportunity of composing the differences between her and the defendant to show that she could afford to be generous in this matter."

Mr. Norman Birkett, K.C., said all that remained was to make it quite plain that no aspersion of any kind rested upon Mrs. Beardslee-Grundy. The allegations were fully, unequivocally and completely withdrawn. Mrs. Beardslee-Grundy was entitled to leave the Court with the knowledge that her character was completely vindicated.

The publication alleged in the pleadings was of an extremely limited and special character. It was not a case that the allegations were broadcast, or that there was any secret or furtive dissemination.

A plea of "privilege" had been raised and that would have been the only matter before the Court.

It was never the intention of the Hon. Barbara Yorke-Buller to justify the matters, but merely to explain the circumstances in which the words were spoken. That however, was not now necessary.

Mr. Justice Swift said he thought the parties had acted extremely wisely and Mrs. Beardslee-Grundy could go away resting assured that there was no reflection remaining in regard to the matter.

Mr. Birkett said a sum for costs had been agreed, and the record in the case was accordingly withdrawn.

Eugenic Babies Are Popular

Chicago, Nov. 24.

Creation of "eugenic babies," increasingly popular because of its success, has brought the possibility of divorce, black-mail, and disputed paternity, two New York physicians said to-day in the journal of the American Medical Association.

Drs. Frances I. Symour and Alfred Koerner set up hypothetical cases, together with legal safeguards against them.

They advised the "absent treatment" only with signed consent of both husband and wife and only after a physical examination has determined the husband's sterility.

"Otherwise," they said, "a woman with maternity complex might resort to a ruse by introducing to the doctor some one willing to help her attain her wish."

The donor, they said, should be known both to husband and wife. Consent of both parties legitimates the child and establishes it as the legal heir.

"One may, by a stretch of the imagination," they said, "surmise certain hypothetical situations that might arise. Suppose that for some reason, about 10 years after the birth of the 'eugenic baby' the legal father should tire of his spouse and institute divorce proceedings. He might easily obtain a decree if the consent papers were not available to the doctor or to his associates in the event of his death. The jury would certainly not consider the apparently fantastic story of the wife."

"On the other hand, the wife, in her turn, could plead that she did not know what she was doing and had understood that her husband was the father of the child. The physician would be in for a pretty lawsuit, because the jury would naturally sympathise with the plaintiff."

The physicians recommended that recipient and donor be hospitalised as "it eliminates the question of possibility of blackmail by the donor. He has no possible way of knowing who the recipients are and no one can learn the identity of the donor."

They Strive for Maritime Peace

With complete tie-up of Pacific Coast shipping threatened when agreements with maritime unions and shipping interests terminate, U. S. conciliators work in San Francisco to bring peace. E. H. Fitzgerald, left, and E. P. Marsh, Labor Department conciliators, asked employers and unions to co-operate by extending existing agreements pending negotiations for new contracts.

I'LL NEVER BE A MR. OBERON

—DAVID NIVEN

New York, Nov. 25. MERLE is in love—but DAVID says: "I'll never be a Mr. Oberon."

"HOPE deferred maketh the heart sick" is perhaps the thought in the mind of Merle Oberon as she stays here awaiting the arrival of film star David Niven.

Intending to wait in the Aquilana to-day, Merle learned her mind when she learned from David that he could not bid her good-bye at the pier. Influenza, he wired, had got him down while holiday-making in the south.

He hopes to arrive here at the end of the week in plenty of time to see the sights of New York with her before she sails in the Queen Mary.

WHEN the glamorous star arrived in New York she was very non-committal about the prospect of her marriage with Mr. Niven. It was "No," or "I don't know," or "Maybe"—perhaps Hollywood's way of saying "Yes, but not yet."

There is also Mr. Niven's say in the matter. Despite his acknowledged affection for Merle he is determined to carve out his own career in films.

"THEY WILL SAY I WAS VULGAR—" GEORGE ROBEY ON THE VERDICT OF YEARS

"I suppose I shall go down to posterity as a vulgar man; but vulgarity, I say, is merely a question of time and place."

George Robey speaking—to famous actors and actresses at a dinner given in his honour by the Old Players' Club in London recently.

"One of the biggest outrages of my career," he said, describing his 43 years on the stage, "was when Mr. Sydney Carroll took me under his wing and put me in Shakespeare."

"People often come up to me and ask, 'Wasn't it difficult?' I tell them that I have worked under all sorts of difficult conditions and have had to find my own material."

"This time I went into the theatre with a script which was written by Mr. William Shakespeare and I found that all I had to do was to say it!"

"My ability to achieve happiness in life has been that I have been able to mix with all kinds of people equally well."

QUEER PALS

"Not long ago, I stayed overnight with some extremely 'posh' people and had a grand time putting on my la-di-da manner."

"Next day when they saw me off at the station a party of convicts shouted out, 'Hello, George, old boy.'"

"My posh friends' eyebrows went up and my la-di-da manner fell away, and a porter exclaimed 'Blimey, he's got some queer pals.'"

Sir Cedric Hardwicke said it was a matter for congratulation that against those whose names flared up and died they had great artists like Miss Marie Tempest and Mr. George Robey who had kept their flame alight for 50 years.

Hollywood chains prevent him from going to England with the girl of his heart. It is even doubtful whether work will permit him to get away to his home country by Christmas.

REPORTS have it that Merle has a clause in her film contract forbidding marriage. Those familiar with Hollywood routine say that such a clause is mythical.

In any event, whatever are the young couple's hope of an early marriage, beautiful Merle reveals her romantic affection for David by causing Korda's studios in England to wait a week for the heroine of "I Claudius."

IT is almost certain that Mr. Pandro Berman, the producer responsible for most of the Astaire-Rogers and Katherine Hepburn films, will leave the Radio-Keith-Orpheum (R.K.O.) organisation for an important executive post with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

MISS Loretta Young, who threatened to walk out of the Twentieth Century Fox Studios after refusing two parts, one because it was not suitable, has settled her differences with the company.

THE Interlocutory divorce decree granted to Mrs. Mac Elizabeth Keaton, wife of Buster Keaton, was made absolute yesterday. Although the original decree was granted on the application of his wife, it was Buster Keaton who applied for it to be made absolute.

MISS Mae West, who has had to keep to her room at Hollywood with a severe influenza cold, told a Daily Mail reporter on the telephone: "You may say I am not going west."

BRONCHOSCOPE AIDS STUDY OF TUBERCULOSIS

Denver, Nov. 15.

Constantly on the alert for new and effective ways of combating tuberculosis, medical science now is employing the bronchoscope as its latest weapon in the battle against the disease.

Use of the bronchoscope, an instrument for peering into the main windpipes of human lungs which has won wide publicity through its success in aiding removal of safety pins and other articles swallowed by children, was explained here by Dr. Harry E. Kleinschmidt of New York, director of health education of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Dr. Kleinschmidt emphasized that the instrument is an "aid" in diagnosis of tuberculosis and is not a "cure-all." It is being used successfully in the diagnosis of some tuberculosis cases, he said.

"Sometimes it is difficult to differentiate between tuberculosis and malignant infections of the lungs and abscesses," Dr. Kleinschmidt said.

"While the bronchoscope cannot look into the recesses of the lungs, it can look into the main windpipes and with its use is proving possible in some cases to make proper diagnosis which might be impossible by any other method."

"It might be described as a periscope which allows the physician to look into the patient's lungs."

Bootless Footballers To Play In The Local League

THE MIXED DOUBLES TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP: S. CHINA BOGEY ESTABLISHED

KUMAON Rifles, Hongkong's newest football team which arrived here on Friday did not turn out for their Shield match on Saturday, but had a practice game in which, I am told, they displayed very promising form. Several of the players were only rubber shoes, while others played bare-footed. Whether they intend to turn out in league games like this I do not know, but if they do it will add a touch of picturesque to local soccer pitches never before enjoyed. In Malaya and India it is common to see native teams play without any covering to their feet, and it is astonishing the distances they can send a stationary ball. The first time I saw such an exhibition it made me involuntarily shudder, for to the European there are few more tender and fragile parts of the body than the toes. Of course these bare-footed players usually kick with their instep. Even so there always appears to be the danger of stubbing a toe in the ground, which is not a very consoling thought. I rather think the Kumaons are going to provide Hongkong with some out-of-the-ordinary football. It seems that they have a well developed technique, but are weak in first-time kicking—which isn't to be wondered at if some of them are playing without boots.

Shield Tie Incident

NEARLY everybody interested in local football has his attention centred on the probable outcome of this evening's meeting of the Emergency Committee, adjourned from last week, which is studying and investigating the incident in the Shield match between Kowloon Chinese and the Club. A prolonged session allowed the Committee to delve fairly deeply into the affair, but the investigation could not be completed. Though the meeting is private and cannot be attended by members of the Press (a grave mistake this, I think), there have been rumours in plenty going around town as to the likely outcome of the enquiry. Most of them can be discounted; others, which one cannot reveal at this stage, certainly appear to have some foundation of accuracy. But whether this or that it is to be sincerely hoped that the Emergency Committee will allow nothing to obscure its duty as an administrative body in a matter of such importance and of such possibly far-reaching influence. To dispense judgment in such a case may appear to demand severe treatment; but then the incident and the events connected with it are very serious, and if allowed to go by without any real exemplary action, may jeopardise the status quo of Hongkong referees.

AS generally expected, W. C. Hung and Mrs. Nora Wilson walked into the final of the Colony open mixed doubles tennis championship.

TEST CHANCES Hobbs Says The Odds Favour Australia

Freemantle. "There is no doubt the odds are in favour of Australia in the forthcoming Tests," said Jack Hobbs, international cricketer, who reached Freemantle in the Maloja last month to report for English and Australian newspapers during the English team's tour.

Australia had an abundance of good cricketers, while the game had been at a low ebb in England for the past three or four years so far as "top-notch finds" were concerned, he said. However, he was hopeful of Allen's team moulding into a strong combination. "England should get plenty of runs, but her bowling strength is problematical at this stage," he said.

Fishlock Praised

AFTER Walter Hammond, the man who seems to have created most favourable comment among the Australian critics is Fishlock, the Surrey left-hander who is now on his first tour of Australia. This is rather curious as very little has been heard of him on the present tour; so much so that I have heard enthusiasts in Hongkong criticising his inclusion. But Jack Fingleton, the Australian

RIFLES ALL AT SEA

AGAINST NAVY DISINTEGRATED ATTACK

GOAL DECIDES (By "Veritas")

Royal Navy 1 Ulster Rifles 0

Not before, this season, has the generally acknowledged irresistible Ulster Rifles attack been made to look so puny as in this match at Causeway Bay yesterday. It was completely disintegrated by a thrilling first-time tackling of Wolverson and Telfer until only Ferguson and Erwin remained as any sort of threat to the Navy goal.

The Rifles were, in fact, outplayed in most departments. Bowers' hand-some display at centre-half marked him as the best half back on view, though he could always depend on Laister and Gardner for good support, whereas the Rifles' wing halves were anything but impressive.

GOOD DEFENCE

Rifles were very much better served in defence, where Pickering and Stevens played determinedly against a quintette which moved the ball swiftly and cleverly along the ground. To counter these moves the backs had to exploit some perfect positional play, and it is to their credit that only once were they pushed, and then it was not in the nature of a clean break-through.

Navy played superb football in every respect. They did not part with the ball so hurriedly as the Rifles, yet they made much more ground and in far quicker time. Their passes were well directed and the players made things look easy by the neat manner in which they ran into position.

Baxter was a dangerous attacker, while White thoroughly enjoyed himself making openings. If Tippet had been a little quicker in action on the left wing, there might have been a tally of goals.

Howe dominated the middle of the field and nearly always came out tops in his many duels with Campbell. He also saw to it that Ferguson was not allowed too much rope, though the Rifles' centre-forward was a lively hand and was not easy to keep check.

Wolverson had no peer on the field as full back. His big kicking, splendidly timed tackling and daring interceptions were as good as anything seen on the Navy ground this season. Telfer was a worthy partner and his pair never looked like being pushed.

Rifles made something of a show in the first half, but they were not harmonious in attack and most of their sporadic thrusts could be easily countered. Navy played the more constructive football from the start and always looked good for goals.

The one which gave them two league points was the result of a fine shot by Baxter, which had with it the element of surprise. He shot on the run when a goal to be tackled, and the ball sailed just underneath the bar with Conner looking on helplessly.

Rifles' goal has other narrow escapes after this, whereas Navy citadel was only seriously threatened once. That was towards the end of the match when Ferguson at last evaded the close attentions of Wolverson and Telfer and got through to shoot hard. But the ball rebounded off Cocker's outstretched foot and Killen, who was following up, ballooned over the bar from a fine position.

POLICE HAD THEIR CHANCES

BUT THREW 'EM AWAY

CHAMPIONSTAKE THE POINTS

Police 0 S. China "A" 1

That Police could become a really first-rate team if only they could find forwards who would shoot for goal, was illustrated yet again yesterday when they lost to South China "A" after enjoying an equal share of the play.

That they did not at least share the points could be traced directly to the refusal of the inside trio to make use of opportunities. Parker, Green and Brooks constantly failed to shoot when nicely positioned, thus leaving themselves easy victims for the fast-tackling Li Tin-sang and Tam Kong-jik.

Police in midfield had nothing to learn from the champions, and territorially they enjoyed a fair balance of the exchanges. This was largely made possible by the rejuvenated display of their half backs, of whom Gough was outstanding. Pile and Moss on the wings also accomplished some excellent work, but once the ball was in front of the Chinese goal, Police attack faded out of the picture.

South China didn't play as though they were capable of beating all main Sunday teams in Hongkong. Possibly some of this was due to reaction from Saturday's sorry affair. The forwards individually were clever, but their concerted movements lacked thrust and penetrative power. With Gough, North, Blackburn and Bone in good form, there was never any great chance of the Chinese movements developing into goals.

Li Tin-sang continued to add prestige to his reputation as a full back without superior in Hongkong, but the half back line, robbed of Wong Mee-shun, never rose above mediocrity and appeared quite content to defend and to play a rather negative type of game.

The attack was more or less a one-man show, Fung King-cheung being alert and skilful, but inadequately supported. Wong Mee-shun was hopeless on the left wing and Tso Kwai-shing did not see enough of the ball to be able to get into his stride.

The deciding goal came in the first quarter of an hour when Fung manoeuvred the ball for Ho Ka-ming to back-heel cleverly into the net.

Diocesan Boys Only Just Beaten By St. Stephen's

AN EXCITING DECIDING SET

Diocesan Boys' School put up a praiseworthy display against St. Stephen's College in a tennis match at D.B.S. on Saturday, losing only by the odd set in nine. The performance was in line with their victory over Central British School the previous week, as St. Stephen's boast one of the best schools tennis teams in the Colony. Results were:—

Liem Sik-liang and Lew On-sing (D.B.S.) lost to Ngo Chin-ong and Yung Song-lin 2-6; beat Tho Kai-seng and Oh Kheng-wan 6-0; beat Lim Kwai-yung and Kho Pin-chia by default.

Ip Yee-hui and Sai Fui (D.B.S.) lost to Ngo and Yung 3-6; lost to Tho and Oh 5-7; beat Lim and Kho 6-4.

D. Cray and D. Lyen (D.B.S.) lost to Ngo and Yung 5-7; lost to Tho and Oh 4-6; beat Lim and Kho 6-2.

Cray and Lyen played very well to pull up from 3-5 to five-all before losing to St. Stephen's best pair, Ngo and Yung in the twelfth game.

On another court, Ip Yee and Hui Sai-fun (the latter playing in place of W. Lau), were rather unlucky to lose to Tho and Oh. Here again the Diocesan boys pulled up from 5-3 to square the score, but conceded the next two games.

For St. Stephen's Ngo and Yung played with perfect understanding and won all three sets in excellent manner. Tho and Oh were a little fortunate to win two out of three, while Kho was the weak link in the Lim-Kho combination.

St. Stephen's led 2-1, 3-2 and 4-3, but the Diocesan boys won the eighth game, then had to concede the ninth. Cray served in the tenth game and should have won it easily, but several chances were missed and St. Stephen's won it largely on errors.

COLLEGE'S EARLY LEAD

St. Stephen's won the first two sets and then went to 3-1. But the home players made a good recovery to square the match at three-all. The defeat of Ip and Hui put the College into the lead again and then followed the deciding set in which Tho and Oh beat Cray and Lyen after a finely contested game.

Cricketers' Autographs Ban Proposed

Sydney, at any rate, of the Australian cricketers is contemplating a ban, or, at least, some restriction on the importation of the ubiquitous autograph-hunters who are preparing to descend on the M.C.C. test team.

Bert Oldfield, Stanley McCabe and Alan Blythe are among those who have raised their voices in support of the movement, says Austral News. "If people are genuinely interested in obtaining a player's autograph," said Oldfield, "I suggest that autograph books be sent to his hotel accompanied by a fee of threepence or sixpence. This money could be devoted to the hospitals in the city in which the match is being played."

McCabe heartily agrees. "Autograph hunters are a nuisance," he declared. Kippax spoke feelingly. "While every player is pleased to oblige within reason," he said, "the stage is frequently reached when scraps of paper, bits of cardboard, and even cigarette butts are handed to you, and it becomes more than a joke."

Meanwhile Sydney stationers report booming sales in autograph books and fountain pens, says Austral News.

"Veritas" On Badminton

CHINESE Y.M.C.A. MUCH TOO STRONG FOR "B" DIVISION

To-night's Matches: St. Andrew's Without Henry Kew

Free Lances, who made a none-too-impressive debut in the men's badminton league last Monday are this week "At Home" to Chinese Recreation Club on the latter's court, which, I fear, means only one thing—defeat for the Free Lances.

They were without Austin, their new "star" against St. Andrew's, and I don't know whether he will be playing this evening. Free Lances can do with him, as his inclusion should mean a big strengthening up of at least one pair.

C.R.C. have a player who is beginning to make a name for himself in local badminton, P. C. Leung, who last season played for Kowloon Tong, has made tremendous improvement during the summer, thanks to constant practice at the Jockey Club, and he now ranks as one of the C.R.C. leading performers. His play in the mixed doubles last Friday was outstandingly good, and there is small doubt that if he continues to improve he will vie with the best of our talent if, when there are any representative honours going around.

St. Andrew's "A" receive the champions—Recreo "A"—and defeat appears to be inevitable. Henry Kew is still on the sick list which is a severe blow to the Saints. With him and Ernie Fincher operating together, St. Andrew's always stand a good chance of two games. M. Weill is to be introduced to the team as Sonny Bing has already played one match for the "A" team and will therefore become ineligible for the "B" if he plays again.

The other two pairs will remain unaltered, but the most St. Andrew's can hope for is to snatch a couple of games.

CHINESE "Y" TOO STRONG There is no question that when Chinese Y.M.C.A. applied for admission to the second division they completely misled the Badminton Association as to their playing strength. Performances so far have proved beyond doubt that the Chinese "Y" are as strong as any of the senior division teams, and that they cannot help winning the "B" Division championship.

It is rather unfortunate that it has turned out thus, as it was the aim of the Association to try and make the second division championship a good, open, sporting event. As it is much of the interest in it is threatened because of the pronounced superiority of one team. King's College alone look capable

Siskin Wins "H" Class Event By Narrow Margin

Siskin won the "H" Class event of the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club on Saturday when she beat Dorothea by a narrow margin over a 7.7-mile course. Siskin was sailed by Mr. D. of extending the Y.M.C.A., but as they are by no means so well balanced, they are almost certain to lose when they meet.

This evening Chinese "Y" are hosts to St. Andrew's "B", and they will probably win nine-love, with the Saints spending most of the time picking up the shuttles from the floor.

Much more interesting is the match at Kowloon Tong where the "A" team receives King's College. I fancy Kowloon Tong will extend the College fairly well and may easily take three games from them.

The "midgets" of the division S. and S. Home and Kowloon Tong "B"—meet at Sallors and Soldiers Home, where anything may happen, though indications are the S. and S. will win their first points of the season.

Free Lances v C.R.C.
St. Andrew's "A" v Recreo "A"
"B" DIVISION

Chinese Y.M.C.A. v St. Andrew's "B"

LEAGUE CRICKET

BAXTER AND MULCAHY Partnership Of 154 FINE GAME AT I.R.C.

(By "Veritas")

Overshadowing everything else in the junior cricket league on Saturday was the first-wicket partnership of K. Baxter and W. Mulcahy of the Kowloon Cricket Club, who put on 154 runs against an indifferent I.R.C. attack, and so made possible a big win for the Kowloon team after a game in which fortunes had violently fluctuated.

This is the second time this season Baxter has scored over 50 runs against the Indians. He collected 90 odd against them in a friendly at the K.C.C. at the start of the season. But Saturday's innings of 97 was not only more valuable, but far more exhilarating.

He gave one hard chance fairly early on, but otherwise was complete master of the bowling, which was chiefly featured by long hops on the leg stump.

Apart from J.S.A. Curreen and M. R. Abbas none of the Indians' attack could make any impression on Mulcahy and Baxter. The first-named hooked gloriously and found the boundary on ten occasions before losing his wicket for a well-made 69.

UNLUCKY DISMISSAL. Baxter's dismissal was most unfortunate. The winning hit had already been made, but another 15 minutes were left for batting. Receiving from Abbas, Baxter stepped in front of a straight one, but the ball, which he had only required three for his century. Then, off the last ball of the over, Baxter drove hard to mid-on. A run was started but the ball was fielded, somewhat luckily and thrown to Baxter's end to where he was retreating. It seemed that the batsman was in when the ball broke the wicket, but the decision went against him.

Baxter's best strokes yielded him seventeen boundaries. He drove finely, and cut magnificently. Altogether a very good innings.

The first stage of the match went all in favour of the visitors, who, after winning the toss, put the Indians in to bat. But the I.R.C. lost their first four wickets for 29 runs, Baxter, bowling a good length and coming in a bit, taking three of them.

Then F. M. el Azzouli, aided by a bit of joss, but nevertheless executing some fine strokes, and A. K. Sultana, who was a model of accuracy, added 90 for the fifth wicket. Sultana's knock-off of 69 was a splendid piece of batsmanship, while Azzouli's 32 was invaluable.

Finally the Indians were able to declare at 174 for 9—a sporting closure which carried with it a challenge the K.C.C. could not ignore.

RECORD FOR GROUND? Playing steadily, but punishing anything loose (and there was a lot of this stuff), Mulcahy and Baxter carried the score along at a pace of two runs a minute to 154 before Mulcahy hit too soon at a long hop on his leg stump and was clean bowled. But Dunne and Baxter easily hit the remaining 21 runs.

I am told that the first-wicket partnership between Mulcahy and Baxter constitutes a record for the I.R.C. ground, though my informant was not too certain about this, so that it must not be taken as gospel.

But it was a brilliant effort, and is further indication that K.C.C. boasts one of the, if not the, strongest batting sides in the second division.

Results in brief of Saturday's matches, and leading individual performances follow.

MACAO WINS BRILLIANT HOCKEY GAME AGAINST THE K.I.T.C.

PILE ON GOALS IN THE SECOND HALF

(By Our Own Correspondent)

In spite of the Race Meeting in Macao this afternoon, exceptionally large crowds turned out to witness the display of spectacular hockey when the Kowloon Indian Tennis Club, captained by A. P. Sousa, was eclipsed by the formidable Macao Hockey Club, the scores being 5-1.

Both teams were in fine form and during the first half, much excitement was provided by the clever movements on either side. Three minutes before the interval, the visitors broke away smartly and Azal-Khan, inside right, registered the first goal with a hard shot.

The second half found Macao quickly equalizing as Amillar Angelo at left wing placed a neat angle shot from close range. Speedy distribution was a feature of the play of the local team, and amid excitement, Angelo scored again ten minutes later.

GALLANT FIGHT

The visitors put up a gallant fight and constantly threatened the Macao goal. Pyra Singh at centre-forward was particularly prominent and worked dexterously with his fellow forwards.

Three short corners did not produce anything for Macao, but the well-directed shot by Pedro Angelo at centre-forward gave the home team a further lead as the high ball landed into the net. Macao's left winger exhibited his address by penetrating the opposing defence and registering the fourth goal for his side and two minutes later, Pedro Angelo eluding Kishan Singh, the Indians left back, secured the final goal for Macao.

To-day's match was the best ever played on the Macao hockey ground. The visiting eleven played with splendid pluck and never conceded anything without vigorous struggle. On the whole they defeated their own purposes by holding the ball too long.

Pyra Singh shone with his magnificent tackling and accurate passing, and, but for the watchful eye of Amillar, would have scored several times. Tara Singh proved himself extremely dependable in his position at centre half. His midfield tactics would have accomplished satisfactory results but for the timely interceptions of the opposing defence. The visitors' backs, opposing doggedly, Kishan Singh displaying remarkable coolness in the face of lightning movements and repeatedly holding the attack in suspense. The wings were clever in linking, but often fumbled with the ball.

For Macao, Alex Airoa at centre-half was skilful and repeatedly put his forwards in favourable positions by fine passing. Rosario and Amillar were strong in defence. Airoa, inside right, played amazingly clean hockey, and his stickwork did him full credit. Jono Nolasco and Amillar Angelo, constantly showed flashes of excellent form in the attacking combinations. They never hesitated, but rendered themselves very disturbing to the opposing defence by fast hitting to centre.

TENNIS MATCH

The day's sports activities between the Kowloon Indian Tennis Club and Macao were also marked with a friendly doubles tennis tournament against the Civil Tennis Club this morning. The matches resulted in an easy win for Macao by 2 to 1.

The visitors were unaccustomed to the hard courts here and were further handicapped by the absence of Wahan and Ruman. For the visitors the Hussain brothers played a fine game, and were seen to advantage against Yuen and Vaz. Firdos Khan and M. A. Khan displayed good form in quite a few of the games. A. H. Mello and C. H. da Silva played sound baseline tennis.

The results were as follows: J. M. Fernandes and L. A. de Mello beat S. A. Hussain and S. S. Hussain 6-3, 6-3; beat Firdos Khan and M. A. Khan 6-4, 6-1; beat I. Mahan Singh and Jahan Dad 6-2, 6-3. A. H. da Mello and C. H. da Silva beat Khan and Hussain 7-5, 6-4; beat Singh and Dad 7-5, 6-1. F. C. Yuen and C. Vaz lost to Hussain and Hussain 2-6, 6-0; beat Khan and Khan 6-7, 7-9, 6-3; beat Singh and Dad 5-7, 7-5, 7-5.

It is nine years since the Kowloon Indian Tennis Club's team has visited Macao. The Club's tennis enthusiasts hope to meet the Macao players in Hongkong during the Yuletide holidays.

JACK MCLEAN FIGHTS A "HOODOO"

AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP STILL BEYOND HIS GRASP

The shadow of some inexplicable hoodoo seems to hang over the golfer's career of Jack McLean.

Acc golfer, keen match player, competition favourite, and one of the most admired golfers among his dour hard-driving competitors, Jack has one great regret in his life.

He cannot win the Amateur Championship. Why? Practising for this great event he has played over courses and returned unimpaired scores which beat the official records. He has played against formidable opponents and licked them hollow.

A GREAT FIGHTER. He takes pains not often seen in any other golfer—amateur or professional. Perhaps these pains are too great.

In practically every game in the championship he has shown himself not only a great golfer but a great fighter.

One of his greatest matches was in the championship at Prestwick in 1934, when he met Johnny Fischer in the third round.

Fischer, it will be remembered, was a member of the Walker Cup team which had triumphed at St. Andrews that year. A more recent recollection will be that Fischer beat Jack McLean in the Walker Cup matches in America at Pine Valley, New Jersey.

But to go back to that game at Prestwick. Before any of the matches had started Francis Clunnet—as well as other members of the American team—had a quiet word with Jack and told him quite plainly that he was facing one of the finest amateur golfers in America—if not in the world.

But that fact had no terrors for Jack. Playing perfect golf, he won by 2 and 1.

Yet his hopes were short-lived, although he succeeded by beating another formidable American Jesse Guilford.

The hoodoo seemed to be operating, and down he went to Wallace, a local artisan who seemed to know every blade of the course.

The championship was won by Lawson Little—a brilliant player.

Barracking Is Big Problem Now IN AUSTRALIA

By A. G. Moyes
Sydney Sun

THE cricketing public is very interested as to the steps to be taken to prevent "barracking" at the big cricket matches this season, realising that the controlling body has before it a problem that will take some solving if the only solution is to be by official action.

The cricket associations of the States have been invited by the Board of Control to do something. They will doubtless make an effort, but actually it does not rest entirely with them.

The Sydney Cricket Ground is controlled by a trust and, of course, the N.S.W.C.A. must invite that body to discuss the matter before it can do anything.

Cricket officials are as far as I can see, not unduly perturbed. They feel—and rightly so—that an appeal to the good sense and sportsmanship of the cricketing public will readily remove any cause for official action, and it was significant that after the publicity given to the discussion the barracking at the recent testimonial match was far below the average of recent years, and was never offensive.

NO POLICE ACTION

It is obvious that no controlling body would wish to invite public action. The position of a policeman on the Hill under such circumstances would be most unenviable, and the general feeling is that it will not be necessary.

The genuine cricket lover is fair-minded and will not offend against good taste by making objectionable remarks about those who are entertaining him, and they will, it is felt, soon make it their business to squash those who go to a cricket match as a holiday and are prepared to sacrifice the players in order to get some rough enjoyment out of it.

TELEGRAPH'S NEW SERIAL

THE STORY TOLD FAR:

The Capulets and Montagues, mighty families of Verona, are sworn enemies. A mere word sets their henchmen to fighting and their street brawl endangers the property and persons of private citizens. A particularly bloody fight occurs outside the Cathedral the day of the Festival. The Prince of Verona threatens death to both families should they fight again. Lord Capulet is relieved to think his young daughter Juliet was not at church to witness the battle. Lord Montague wonders why his son Romeo was not on hand to help his nephew Benvolio against the Capulets.

INVITATION TO THE DANCE

CHAPTER TWO

SAW you Romeo, to-day? Lord Montague had asked. Benvolio had not answered because he preferred not to. He had seen his cousin, no doubt he knew too, that while other Montagues had been fighting, Romeo had been making love sonnets. He quickened his pace as he neared the fallen and crumbling ruins of the Capulet grove. The trees and early summer flowers grew thickly between the broken marble columns. It was a quiet and lonely place, with an air of tender melancholy; a fit place for solitary contemplation. He paused uncertainly for a moment, and then made his way steadily toward the young man who lay beneath a tree, absorbed in his own thoughts. "Good morning, cousin," he called. The young man looked up, startled from his reverie. When he saw who had addressed him, he sighed. "Is the day so young?" he mused. "Sad hours seem long."

Benvolio laughed derisively. "What sadness lengthens Romeo's hours?" "No, having that which having makes them short," was the answer. "In love?" Benvolio queried mockingly. "Out," replied his cousin shortly. "Out of love?" the other teased. Romeo shook his head. "Out of her favour where I am in love."

Benvolio's smile was a taunt. To think Romeo could brood about love... but who was she? "Rosaline?" he guessed. Romeo nodded sheepishly. "Rosaline?" he sighed.

And for a moment silence hung between them. "Love," observed the lover, "is a smoke raised with the fume of sighs; being purged it is a fire sparkling in lovers' eyes; being vexed, it becomes a sea nourished with lovers' tears. And what else is it? A madness most discreet—a choking gall, and," he sighed again, "a preserving sweet."

He thought back upon what he had said, and with the look of one well pleased with his own wisdom, arose. Benvolio urged him to speak more of this fair Rosaline to whom he had lost his heart, and led the way to a narrow, twisted street outside the grove.

So intent was Romeo upon his praise of Rosaline that he did not see the serving man walking toward them. And so absorbed was the man in a notice of the approaching young men, Benvolio stepped aside and laughed as the two collided with each other. The servant blinked in astonishment and then sheered off apologetically.

Romeo smiled. "Good day, good fellow," he said kindly. "God give good day," the other answered with relief. And then, encouraged by Romeo's courtesy, he held out his paper. "I pray sir, can you read?" he asked.

"I can read my own fortune in my misery," laughed Romeo. "But can you read anything you see?" questioned the servant helplessly. "I know the letters and the language."

The old man shook his head. He was more puzzled than ever. What kind of answer might that be? He sighed. Evidently the gentleman was making game of him and meant no help. He started off.

"Stay, fellow," said Romeo. "I can read."

The servant's face cleared of its frown and he handed over his paper. Romeo looked over it unconcernedly and then paused to study it with care. It was a list of names, most evidently a guest list, to a dance and feast. His eyes eagerly fastened on the name of his Rosaline.

"A fair assembly," he observed at length with a fine show of indifference. He turned to the servant. "And whither should they come?" he asked.

"To supper," answered the man. "To our house," questioned Romeo. "Whose house?" questioned the man.

"My master's," the other replied proudly. "Indeed," said Romeo with humor, "I should have asked you that before."

"My master is the great rich Capulet," he stopped and eyed them sharply. No. They could not be Montagues. They were too kindly. "And if you be not Montagues, I pray you come and crush a cup of wine."

He waited expectantly to see how his invitation might be received. This was no ordinary feast and dance, this was the most magnificent celebration ever given by the Capulet. He eyed the guests at the thought of the preparations even now being made at the Capulet home.

Lord and Lady Capulet and every member of the family were to be honored by the magnificence of the occasion. All were attending, all were eagerly concerned, except the one who most should have been.

She was busy with her game of Juliet and the nurse into the house so that they might make ready for the evening.

And hurrying to their homes for need of her eye as she fitted shaft the same purpose went Romeo and Benvolio. "Romeo—thou art mad," protested the latter. "And yet—at this same ancient feast of Capulets her nurse who sat sleeping against the dove house wall lulled by the gentle chorus of cooing doves. Too soon she would awaken and call her to make ready for the feast; but while her nurse dozed there was still time for the game.

As she fitted a second arrow, a voice called through the garden. "Nurse! Where's Juliet?"

The nurse awoke with a start. "I bade her come," she protested and then called to the girl in loud, impatient tones. "Lamb!" she shouted. "Lady bird!" She threw up her hands in despair. "Where's this girl?" She ran toward the lawn.

Juliet dropped her bow with a sigh and followed her nurse. She curtsied as they came into Lady Capulet's presence.

"Madam," she asked, her voice soft with respect. "What is your will?"

"It is this," her mother began, and stopped short. "Nurse, we talk in secret."

The nurse started in hurt indignation. Lady Capulet smiled. "Come, stay," she replied, "thou mayst hear our counsel. Thou know'st my daughter's of a pretty age."

"Faith," replied the nurse, "I can tell her age unto an hour. Thou wast the prettiest babe that e'er I nursed. And I wish to live to see these married."

Lady Capulet beamed. "That marry is the very theme I came to talk of. Tell me, daughter Juliet, how stands your disposition to be married?"

"It is an honour that I dream not of," she girl answered uncertainly. "Think of marriage now," her mother advised. "The valiant Count of Paris seeks you for his love."

"Why! He's a man of wax," declared the nurse.

Lady Capulet threw her a furious glance. "Can you love the gentleman, Juliet? For this feast, you shall behold him at our table."

Juliet smiled at a loss for an answer. "Come," her mother coaxed. "Can you like of Paris' love?"

Juliet spoke hesitantly. "I'll look to like," she said at last. "But no more."

Her mother smiled; so far the course was smooth. She waved her hand. "And harkening to their homes for need of her eye as she fitted shaft the same purpose went Romeo and Benvolio. "Romeo—thou art mad," protested the latter. "And yet—at this same ancient feast of Capulets her nurse who sat sleeping against

Ten Questions for a Christian

SIXTY-SIX books, divided into two groups, one of 39, one of 27. The finest literature ever written in the English language. The greatest dramas, the most sublime tragedies mankind has ever known. The Bible. Printed in every tongue, treasured in hundreds of millions of homes, the common, precious heritage of prince and pauper.

It was not always so. On this very day 400 years ago, William Tyndall, stern-mouthed, white-bearded at 44, was first strangled and then burned at a stake in the little Belgian village of Vilvorde, near Brussels.

His crime? He translated the Bible into English. He worked "to produce a translation that a scholar could approve and a ploughboy understand." His translation is the basis of the Authorized Version produced years later. Have you reaped the fruits of his suffering to the full? Do you know your Bible? Can you answer these ten questions?

1. How old was Methuselah? And what relation was he to Noah?

2. Give in sequence the ten Plagues of Egypt. What great religious festival originated from the last?

3. What meal was Christ eating when He bade farewell to the disciples? And what common superstition dates from that feast?

4. How did Absalom meet his death?

5. Who was the first of the Apostles to be martyred?

6. How did God confound the complaints of Job?

7. Where do the words: "Vanity of vanities! All is vanity?" appear?

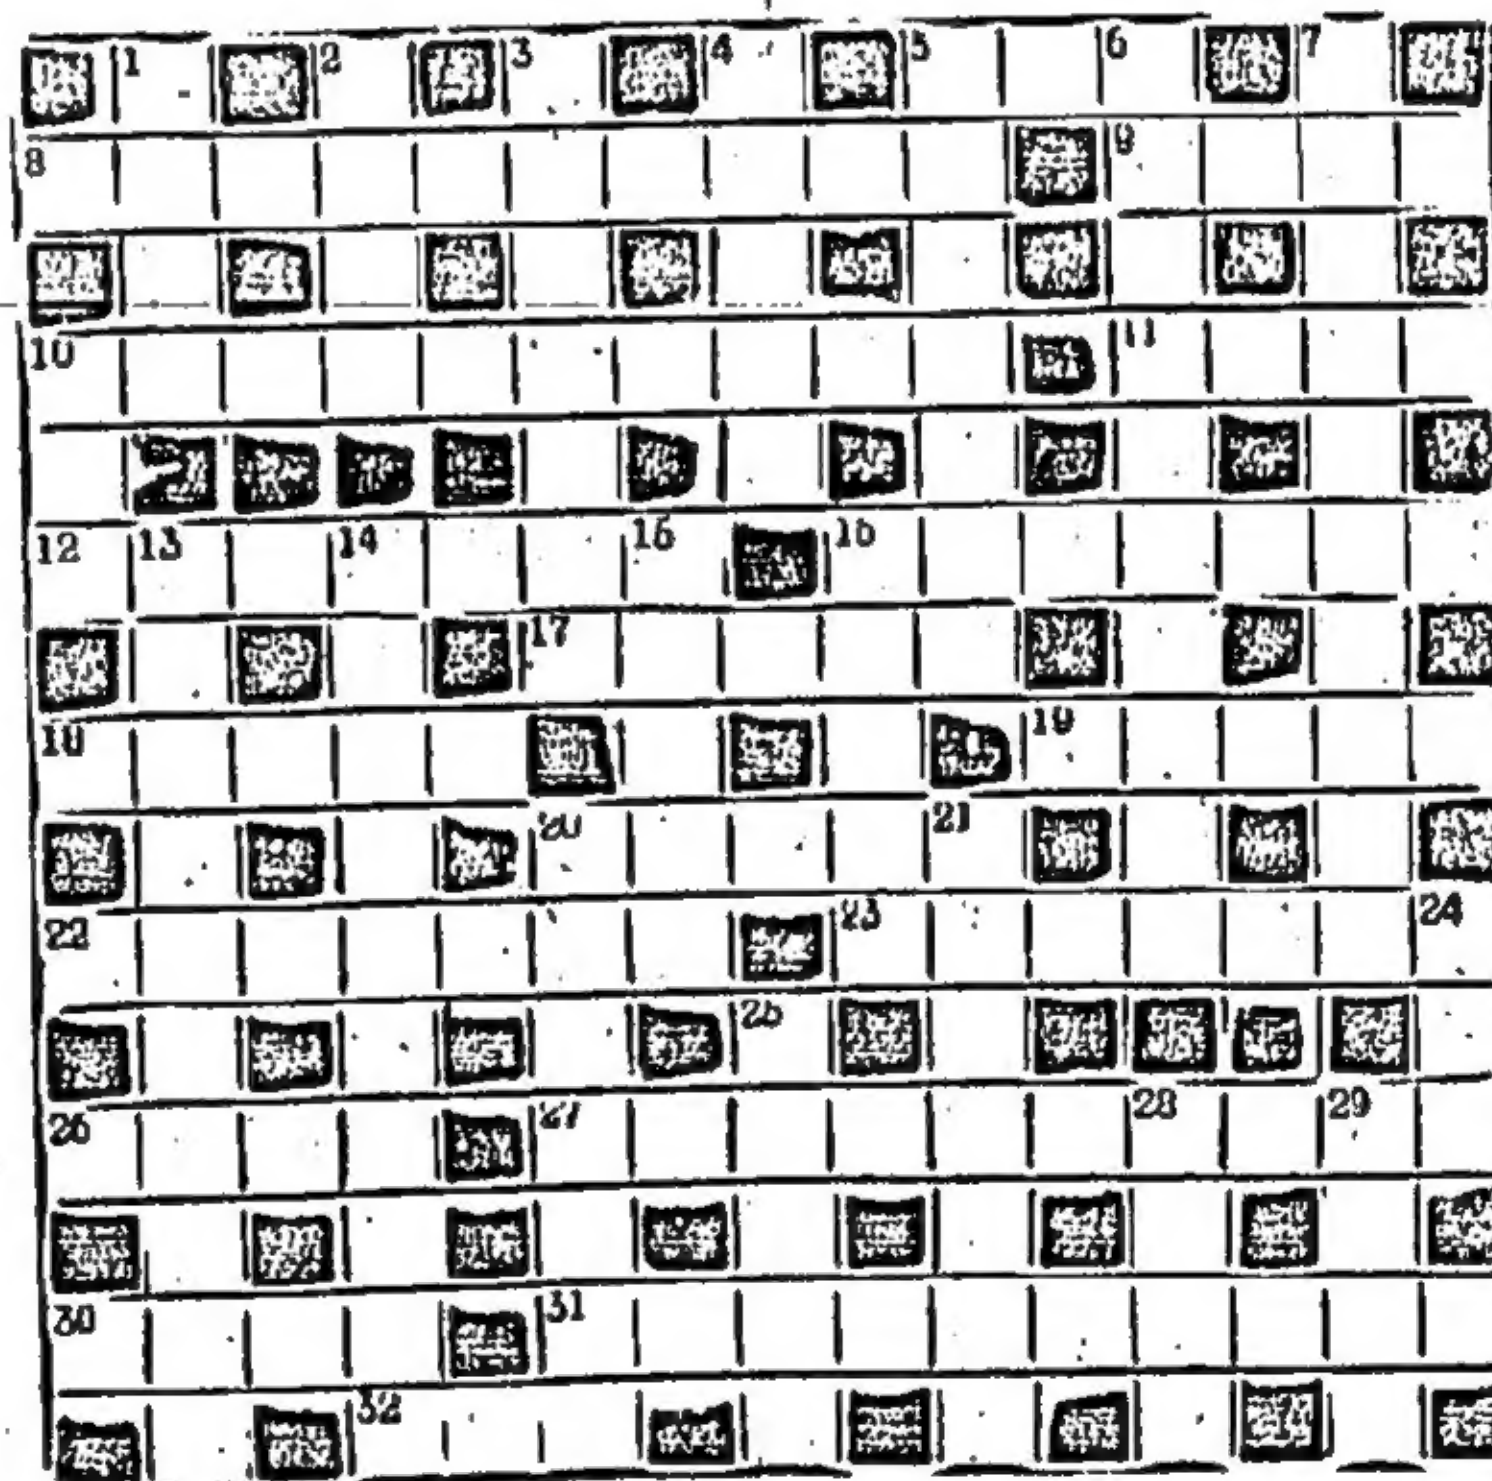

8. What is the number of the Beast of Revelation?

9. What is the meaning of the words: "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani." "Mene, mene, tekel, upharsin." "Golgotha."?

10. Before what authorities was Christ tried before His Crucifixion? What gesture did Pilate make to absolve himself of condemning One he believed innocent?

Answers foot of Column One.

BRIDE TELLS GUESTS "WE WERE, NOT MARRIED"

Mistake In The Date REVELATION IN MIDDLE OF RECEPTION

Brighton, Nov. 1.

ABOUT 30 guests turned up for the wedding of Miss Ada Moreton, of Round Hill Crescent, Brighton, to 24-year-old George Albert King, a commercial traveller. The register office ceremony did not seem to take long to the guests and sightseers who gathered outside. When the couple came out arm in arm they were showered with confetti.

Wife Sues For 1s. A Month Alimony

MRS HETTIE TUROWER sued her ex-husband at Bow County Court recently for arrears of the shilling-a-month alimony granted at her 1934 divorce.She claimed £65 7s. 10d. on two judgment summonses, claiming that Ralph Turower, of Lepple Rd., South Tottenham, had paid nothing since the divorce.Mr. Leonard Caplan, for Mrs.
Turower, told Judge Owen Thompson, K.C., that at the divorce Turower was ordered to pay 1s. a month for herself, and 5s. a week for their child.
In February last, forgoing the arrears, Mrs. Turower obtained an order for Turower to pay 1s. from January 1, 1936. That represented
£6 5s. of the amount now claimed.Questioned by Mr. Caplan, Turower said he was living on money obtained from his brother. In 1932 he received £900 under his father's will, but had lost it all.
The judge ordered him to pay the £6 5s. at £1 a month. The summons for the other sum was adjudged generally.

CANCER AND TUBERCULOSIS THEORY THAT THEY ARE RELATED

A theory that tuberculosis and cancer may be intimately associated, and that both diseases may to a considerable extent be dependent on the amount of zinc taken in by the human tissues, was put forward recently by Sir P. H. R. Vardell, Variet-Jones, Director of Papworth Village Sanatorium.Sir P. H. R. Vardell was addressing members of the Conference on Smoke-Abatement at the Science Museum, South Kensington. He explained that the hypothesis was the result of a biological investigation into tuberculosis undertaken by Dr. D.
Barron Cruickshank, a member of the Papworth research staff.Dr. Cruickshank's investigation was shortly to be published under the title "Tuberculosis, Cancer and Zinc," by the Sims-Woodhead
Memorial Laboratory, Papworth.It had been observed, said Sir
P. H. R. Vardell, that the inhalation of coal dust and coal smoke did not cause tuberculosis. On the contrary, it might, and almost certainly did have a protective effect. There was, however, a large volume of evidence to show that there was a close association between smoke and cancer.Dr. Cruickshank's paper, he said, suggested that the steady decline of tuberculosis mortality—which could not be explained in terms of sanitatory or medical treatment—might have been caused by the increased availability of zinc, owing to the use of galvanised iron containers for food.Zinc-workers, it was known, had a higher resistance to tuberculosis than any other class of worker.A remarkable fact was that cancer had increased in exact ratio to the decline of tuberculosis. Since 1851 the two diseases together had accounted for 20 per cent. of the deaths after the age of 25 each year
—a constant toll, although the tuberculosis figures had steadily fallen.
No such statistical relation had been shown to exist between any other two diseases.It had always been assumed that bacteriophages were not disease-producers. But it had been recently realised that there were many species of viruses as there were bacteria. Some of these, according to Dr. Cruickshank, might actually themselves be pathogenic."From this, Dr. Cruickshank has been bold enough to suggest—and in my view to substantiate—the idea that at the moment when the human organism is invaded by the tubercle bacillus, this pathogenic phase may come into action, and by its successful non-success in lysing the tubercle bacillus, decide whether cancer or tuberculosis shall supplant the virus which all cancer workers are seeking? In other words, are Steenken's lytic factor, Cruickshank's pathogenic phase and Gey's non-specific cancer factor one and the same?"Then, when the whole party had assembled at the bride's house for the reception, Miss Moreton announced that they had not been married at all.She explained she had made a mistake in fixing the date of the wedding and the register had been unable to perform the ceremony.
She then handed her ring back to the bridegroom.In order not to disappoint the guests—some of them had come from a distance—it was decided to continue the reception.

21 DAYS' NOTICE

The registrar, Mr. Horace Burfield, explained:"The 21 days' clear notice of the marriage had not expired, but someone has told the bride that she had only to wait three days—that is to say, for 15 days. Nothing could be done. The couple suggested being married by special licence, but I pointed out that it could not be done that day."The wedding has now been arranged for next week.

ANOTHER REFIT FOR H.M.S. FURIOUS Most-Altered Ship In Fleet AIR CARRYING CHANGES

By A Medical Correspondent

The most altered warship in the Royal Navy is about to undergo yet more alterations.H.M.S. Furious was laid down in 1915, and completed in 1917. She was one of the "hush-hush" super-cruisers which owed their existence to the plans of Lord Fisher. Even among these ships H.M.S. Furious was unique. Her main armament consisted of two 18-in. guns—the largest guns ever mounted in a warship in modern times.But the Furious was never commissioned as a super-cruiser. On March 2, 1917, it was decided to fit her as a seaplane carrier. This entailed the removal of the foremost 18-in. gun, and the building of a large hangar on the fore deck. The foremast, funnel, and the after 18-in. gun remained.About six months later it was decided to remove the after 18-in. gun also and to fit a flying deck with a length of about 300 feet. This alteration was carried out during the winter of 1917-18.The following year again saw the Furious undergoing large alterations.
The operation of what were then known as "land machines" from ships had become possible, and the Furious emerged eventually with a flying deck running the whole length of the ship, and with smoke ducts to the stern instead of a funnel.

BAD WEATHER DIFFICULTY

Since then the rapid development of naval flying has necessitated numerous alterations and additions to the ship, but her appearance has remained substantially the same—long and almost flat-topped except for the hump towards the bridges and with down-sloping flying deck built over the old forecastle.This lower flying deck was built so as to allow of fighter machines being flown off straight out of the hangar, which has huge doors facing directly forward. The down slope was necessary in order that the machines should attain flying speed in their very short run.The slope of the deck has made the Furious very wet in bad weather, and now such progress has been made with the handling of machines and the lifts to the main flight deck that the flying off of machines out of the hangar is not used.The Furious is to be taken in hand at the shipyard next week for a refit, which is expected to last about thirteen weeks. During this time the forecastle will be built up and the vulnerable "front doors" of the hangar replaced by a permanent structure.

HE'S 83—AND SHE PROPOSED

Mr. Thomas Towers, aged 83, of Nottingham, has been a widower for 22 years—but soon he will be married again as, the result of a Leap Year proposal of a neighbour aged 80 to whom he went for lodgings at Keyworth."I don't want any lovers, but I don't mind marrying you," was the only he got from Mrs. Eliza Ann Wilson. And he accepted.
Mrs. Wilson's first husband was a widower with eight children at the time of his wedding. Between them
Mr. Towers and Mrs. Wilson will have more than 30 grandchildren."Miss Spain", 19-year-old, who was selected at Tunis to become
"Miss Europe" for 1936. Her name is Senorita Antonia Angeles, and she is from Barcelona.

ARMY NOT TO INSIST ON "A1" MEN

4 MEDICAL GRADES FOR RECRUITS SOME FOR DUTIES AT THE BASE

The physical and medical standards set for admission to the Army are too high for thousands of candidates who offer themselves. Last year, out of 68,000 men who applied, no fewer than 35,000 were rejected.
The Adjutant-General's Department has, therefore, decided to introduce a new scheme which will embody four grades. The fighting line will be recruited from Grade
"A" men, while the lower grades will provide men who are employed for the most part behind the front line.This new departure was announced this month at the War Office by Major-General D. K. Bernard, Director of Recruiting and Organisation.
It will come into operation on December 1, and will follow in its main features the method adopted during the Great War.

1,500 A YEAR

Instead of every man having to pass the "A 1" standard, General Bernard explained, all recruits for enlistment will be graded by the Medical Recruiting Officers. Those in the lowest category—probably defective through flat feet, poor teeth, deficient weight, &c.—would, if accepted, be employed in the rear-ward services.By making the standard more elastic they would be believed to be able to accept at least 1,000 to 1,500 men in a year who would otherwise be rejected. These men would be able to do their job perfectly well. The fighting troops would still be recruited from the high-grade men."I am quite certain," General Bernard concluded, "that our medical standards have been rather too rigid.
We have wanted the 'A 1' men and have often had to give them an 'A 3' job."This new scheme, together with other proposed measures, is part of a big effort to maintain the voluntary character of service with the "Colours." There are strong arguments against a compulsory form of service, and a reversion to the Militia Ballot would be decidedly objectionable.General Sir Harry Knox, Adjutant-General to the Forces, admits that to avoid any disturbance of the voluntary system of recruiting on which the country prides itself, public opinion must be aroused to the serious weakness of man power today. The relation of strength to establishment for each of the three land forces—Regular Army, Territorial Army, and Supplementary Reserve—showed, he said, a gap of serious proportions.

144,000 WANTED

The Army's year ends on March 31. During the next six months, the Adjutant-General said, the Regular Army needs, to complete the establishment of units and to replace annual wastage, no fewer than 37,000 volunteers. The requirements of the Territorial Army would not be satisfied with fewer than 60,000, while the Supplementary Reserve needed approximately 21,000. The total for all three Services was 144,000.

He believes he will crack all existing speed records from Capetown to the Cape and that he will complete the return flight within five days.—Reuter.

According to earlier advices he reached Marseilles at 12.51 p.m. yesterday, and has made Cairo in about 18 hours.

MOLLISON RETURNING?
Paris, Nov. 29.
The authorities at Le Bourget have received a telegram stating that Jim Mollison is returning to England from Marseilles, owing to trouble developing in his petrol supply system.—Reuter.

MANCHU TROOPS MUTINY

UNCONFIRMED TALE FROM CHARHAR

Peking, Nov. 30.
Groups commanded by Li Shon-hsin, the Manchukuoan general, have mutinied at Charhar, and wrecked the army headquarters there, according to reports from Pinglihuo, which however still lack confirmation.
The reports add that General Li Shon-hsin has decided to throw in his lot with the Chinese.
This story follows an earlier to the effect that a regiment of Mongol irregulars, commanded by Wang Ying, surrendered to the Chinese at a point 20 miles north of Shantung.—Reuter.

ESCORT FOR ROOSEVELT

ARGENTINE VESSELS MEET HIM AT SEA

Aboard Argentine Cruiser, Almirante Brown, Nov. 29.
A fleet of 11 warships, of which we are one, sighted the U.S.S. Indianapolis to-day, 200 miles at sea off Cape Polonio.
The Indianapolis is carrying President F. D. Roosevelt, the Pan-American Peace Conference at Buenos Aires.
The Argentine flagship fired a 21 gun salute to the President's ship, which the Indianapolis returned, simultaneously hoisting the Argentine flag.
Thereafter the Argentine fleet sped up into formation around the American ship and led her towards the River Plate.—United Press.

Jerusalem, Nov. 29.
Arab highwaymen held up eight motor cars on the main road between Nablus and Tulkarm last night and robbed their occupants, including an Englishman and a German.
They erected a barricade in the roadway and armed with rifles, covered their victims, collected their valuables, and then vanished into the night.—Reuter.

GERMAN TERRITORY TOO SMALL, WARNS PRUSSIAN PREMIER

Berlin, Nov. 29.

Germany is not so weak now as when she entered the World War in 1914, declared General Herman Goering, Prime Minister of Prussia and Reich Minister for air, when addressing the National Farmers' Congress at Goslar.

Then, he said, Germany had a cowardly parliament; but now men governed the country he asserted.

He appealed to German farmers to help him carry out his four-year rehabilitation plan.

Liberal circles, General Goering told the farmers, urged him to give better prices to encourage deliveries of their products, saying that otherwise farmers would hold back their wares and so force prices upward. But he would be a traitor to his people who placed a loaf in the pig trough, General Goering charged.

Germany would be independent of foreign countries with regard to her daily bread as long as the farmers did their duty, he continued.

"The territory in which Germans live is too small for its 60,000,000 inhabitants, and will soon be too strong for the 90,000,000 we want to become," the Minister stated. "Should it become necessary for Der Fuehrer to call upon you, I am convinced you German peasants would take hold of the sword in your strong fists as you have taken hold of the plough," he challenged.

Attacks Bolshevism
Meanwhile, in Berlin, Deputy-leader Rudolf Hess, right-hand man of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, was delivering a fierce attack on Bolshevism.
Before the Great War, he said, Lord Kitchener, the famous British Field Marshal, had told a German officer that he foresaw the coming catastrophe of world conflict. But that foresight did not mean that leaders, owing to lack of breadth of vision, would avoid contemplation of and preparation for such a disaster. The position was now the same with regard to Bolshevism. Major Hess declared, but the time would come when the world would thank Germany for acting as a bulwark. He thanked Herr Hitler for reducing the Bolshevist menace through the new alliance with Japan.—Reuter.

Willing Recruit

Rome, Nov. 30.
It is authoritatively stated that Monday or Tuesday a communiqué will announce Japan's recognition of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia and the Italian recognition of Manchukuo. It is understood Italy is willing to join the German-Japanese anti-Communist alliance, but it is thought she will continue her League of Nations membership, hoping to keep the French and British friendship.—United Press.

Cloaked In Mystery To Try Grave

Paris, Nov. 29.
The atmosphere of mystery which shrouded him throughout his days, remained about Sir Basil Zaharoff to the last.
The motor hearse, bearing his body, arrived at his estate in Boulogne shortly after midnight, and the gates were shut when it passed through, and guarded by armed keepers.
Several cars arrived at 9 a.m. and left when the simple funeral ceremonies were concluded.

M.C.C. BATTING STRONGLY

Brisbane, Nov. 30.
The match between M.C.C. and Queensland was resumed here this morning. The visitors, who were 28 runs behind on the first innings, flopped the Queensland bowlers, carrying their second innings overnight score of 19 for none to 127, without the loss of any wickets, before the luncheon interval.
Later—M.C.C. are continuing to bat strongly. The score is now 164 for 0.—Reuter.

MR. T. V. SOONG IN CANTON

Canton, Nov. 30.
Mr. T. V. Soong, former Minister of Finance at Nanking, returned to Canton from Hongkong to-day, with Madame Soong and their children.
It is understood the party is proceeding to Hainan in the next few days to investigate the possibility of development of the island's resources. Hainan is Mr. Soong's native land.—Reuter.

MURDER AND TERROR ABROAD IN MADRID

London, Nov. 30.
Speaking amid the crash of guns while an air raid was in progress last night, Capt. McNamara, M.P., told Reuter's office here over long distance telephone, how he and three other British Members of Parliament, who are making an unofficial visit of investigation, narrowly escaped death from falling shells while visiting the front lines.

Capt. McNamara said food conditions in the capital are awful. There is no meat on the hotel menus. The main items are vegetables and cereals. People are waiting in long queues sometimes for ten hours, to get a cauliflower costing four shillings.
Underground stations are full of refugees sleeping in rows on the platforms. An outbreak of any epidemic would be most serious, he said.
One third of the city is completely in ruins.—Reuter.
THOUSANDS EXECUTED
Gibraltar, Nov. 30.
A British journalist, who has just arrived from Madrid, estimates that since the outbreak of hostilities many thousands of people have been killed in the capital, of whom the majority were shot without trial. More people have been killed in the streets by Madrid's defenders than by insurgent shells, he says.
The scarcity of food is acute and refugees are receiving only one meal a day.
He declares the effects of the bombardments of Madrid are exaggerated by the Government communiques. Shells usually fall in the vicinity of some military objective, the insurgents apparently being unwilling to destroy the city, though churches and schools are being used as barracks and have been shelled. The Telephone Exchange Building, Madrid's most prominent target, has not been fired at, he claims.—Reuter.

MARKET PRICES ADVANCE

New York, Nov. 29.
Prices advanced on the New York Stock Market Saturday.
The rise was led by steel and utility issues, but trading continued to be cautious with the foreign situation still causing considerable concern.
In addition there are expectations of some realising after the week's late advance, while the commodity market also remains uncertain.
However, business news continues favourable and market sentiment is generally good.
The Bond Market and issues on the Curb Exchange were also higher.

RUSSIANS WANT NO ALLIANCE OR BLOCS

"WE RELY ON OUR OWN STRENGTH" AND SUPPORT THE LEAGUE

Moscow, Nov. 29.

"We want no alliances or blocs," declared M. V. M. Molotov, President of the Union Council of People's Commissars, speaking to the All-Union Congress to-day. "We are relying on our own strength, which is growing daily."

"We are too busy with our own affairs to be concerned with foreign intrigues. But we are willing to co-operate in peace with all nations within the framework of the League of Nations," he declared.

"Germany left the League in order to obtain a free hand in aggression, and the Japanese-German pact is only a screen against an anti-Soviet war."

"There are two forces to-day," said M. Molotov. "Communism, standing for peace; Fascism, standing for war."—Reuter.

STRIKING CLAIMS

"Our air force," M. Molotov continued, "is the most powerful in the world as regards quality and quantity. Since last year our production has been doubled."

"We have hundreds of air destroyers, capable of a speed of 300 miles per hour, which can drop a battalion of fully armed men by parachute, ready to attack an enemy in the rear within ten minutes."

"We betide the Germans if they attack the Soviet Union," he concluded.—Reuter.

INCREASING ARMAMENT

Moscow, Nov. 29.
Admiral V. R. Orlov, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Navy, to-day disclosed the Soviet's gigantic increases in armed forces from January 1, 1933, to January 1, 1936.

Submarines, he said, had been increased by 75 per cent., and other warships by 300 per cent. Naval aviation had been strengthened by the addition of planes to 500 per cent. of the 1933 total. Naval bases had been doubled and coast defences more than doubled.

"In the face of the German and Japanese menaces Russia cannot leave her coasts undefended," he warned.—United Press.

Moscow, Nov. 29.
The Soviet Air Corps Deputy Commander Khripun, told the All-Union Congress to-day that Russia's fighting planes exceed that of any other country. He stated that Russia had seven thousand planes, compared with Germany's six or seven thousand, and added that both nations had two thousand front-line machines, "but our aviation is the most powerful in the world, considering numbers and the fighting spirit."

The announcement has surprised foreign observers, who estimated that Russia had an Air Force of four thousand planes.

Commander Khripun said German figures revealed that Japan had 2,500 planes, the United States 2,700 and France 2,200.

"At present," said the spokesman, "Germany, Italy and Japan want more planes than anybody, hence the mad armaments race. Quoting other figures, he said at present the capitalist countries own 10,000 or 12,000 planes, and that within the next two years the number is likely to reach 17,000 or 18,000."

In the past ten months, Soviet aeroplane production had exceeded the entire 1935 production by 94.5 per cent, whilst the Army's planes were four times more than in 1932. Hundreds had a speed of 315 miles per hour, and Russia would soon have machines with a speed of 420 miles per hour.

"If Germany says she must have 75,000 fliers in the near future," declared Commander Khripun, "the Soviet shall have 100,000. If the flying weapons of the German Fascists threaten Russia, we will then if the Soviet were forced to use all their war weapons."

It is believed that the Soviet strength is largely in tri-motored bombers, capable of carrying heavy loads, but relatively slow compared with British German and American bombers. However, it is understood that recently the Russian factories have been concentrating on the production of fast-pursuit planes.—United Press.

Machine-Guns Check Screaming Militia

CAVALRY PURSUE REMNANT OF 2,000 ATTACKERS

With Nationalists in Casa de Campo, Nov. 29.

The Government's militiamen swept across the muddy fields to the north of Madrid to-day.

They came first at dawn, from two 25-car armoured trains which carried 2,000 men as far as the barrage of the rebel machine-guns. The militiamen broke and scattered for the hills after an indecisive two-hour battle, the trains retreating and leaving many of the fighting men behind. As the infantry fled, the Nationalist cavalry followed them, fleet mounts easily overtaking the fugitives, and the troopers cut them down with their four-foot sabres.

The battlefield is ghastly; more so because of the cats and dogs, which feed on corpses.

The second assault came on the Casa de Campo. I lay prone in the mud to escape the thickest hail of bullets and shells seen since the siege of Madrid commenced. It seemed as though hell had broken loose.

ITALIANS MAY CUT LEAGUE RELATIONS

Rome, Nov. 29.

If the League of Nations Secretary-General's proposal that the Council of the League meet to discuss the Spanish situation results in such a meeting being held, a situation will arise which will be regarded by Italy as "grave and dangerous." In the opinion of unofficial observers such a situation may constitute grounds for Italy's severance of all relations with the League.

It is claimed here that the Italian and German Governments are entirely within their rights in recognising the rebel junta of General Francisco Franco, of Spain, and a League meeting at which Italy would again figure as an accused would be regarded here as intolerable.—Reuter.

Recognising Franco

Vienna, Nov. 29.
Joint Austro-Hungarian recognition of General Francisco Franco's insurgent government, when the capture of Madrid is completed, is reported to have been decided upon at a conference attended by Austria's Chancellor, Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg and Dr. Schmidt, the Foreign Minister, and Hungary's Prime Minister Koloman Daranyi and Foreign Minister Koloman de Kanya.—Reuter.

Council Approached

Geneva, Nov. 29.
The League of Nations Secretary-General has communicated with the members of the Council, proposing that the Council meet on December 7 or 14, to discuss the alleged intervention in the Spanish civil war by Germany and Italy, as requested by the Spanish Government.

Replies of the Council members are requested by December 1, and the venue of the meeting, though not

The militiamen advanced screaming, and swinging their rifles above their heads. As soon as they were sighted a terrific artillery exchange began, and the Nationalist machine-guns, cut great swatches from the approaching militia ranks, and forced their retreat at 1 p.m. Heaps of dead remained behind.

Meanwhile, General Franco was taking advantage of the loyalist retreat here, and drove forward through the suburbs, on the road to Cuatro Caminos, near the centre of Madrid.—United Press.

Madrid Push

Talavera, Nov. 29.
Clear weather to-day was the signal for a general Nationalist offensive against the capital, and this morning attacks were made on all fronts, backed up by artillery and aircraft bombardments. The toughest fighting is developing in Paseo de Rosales, North-west Madrid, and the Tetuan quarter, in the North.—Reuter Special.

City Grows Apprehensive

Madrid, Nov. 29.
A sunny break in the bad weather this morning made the citizens of Madrid apprehensive of further intensive bombing, but they were somewhat reassured when the Government's own planes took the initiative, circled in fighting formation, and flew off towards the enemy lines.

Moorish cavalry attacks in the north-west sector and an early morning thrust in the neighbourhood of University City were both strongly repulsed by the militia, who assert the insurgent casualty lists were heavy.

News from other sectors of the Government's lines is equally encouraging, from the defenders' point of view, and at several points the Government troops' manoeuvres are seriously threatening the insurgents' flanks.—Reuter.

Berlin, Nov. 29.
Germany is most willing to co-operate in international relief action in Spain, along the lines suggested in the British Parliamentary mission's appeal, according to opinions expressed in well-informed circles. Make an AMERICAN BRASSIERE— SLIP

HOLLYWOOD film stars swear by the tailored brassiere-slip, which forms a sleek foundation for smart frocks. The brassiere is moulded to the individual figure by cleverly placed darts, which ensure a perfect fit.

You can make this slip yourself by following the directions given.

A yard and three quarters of 36-inch wide lingerie material, used widthways, will make the garment economically.

The diagrams given in this page are planned for a 36-inch bust, but the brassiere-slip can easily be adapted to a larger or smaller figure.

Two straight pieces of material, fitted to the figure by darts, and joined by a seam at centre front, make front of brassiere. Back is cut in one with skirt.

The Brassiere Front

Cut off a strip, 10 inches deep, the full width of your material. Cut from it four pieces 10 inches by 8 inches (see diagram B) for the brassiere and its lining. Fold one of the pieces in half lengthways on the wrong side. Press the fold, and mark the middle with a pin. From this central point, pin up darts, widening to 1½ inches at the sides (see diagram C).

Now fold the piece in half widthways, and pin up small darts about 1 inch long, on the fold, top and bottom.

Try on the brassiere inside out over another brassiere, pinning it into position to your shoulder straps and underwear at the sides. Adjust the darts till the brassiere fits you like a glove. Turn down and pin the top edge in a sloping line from the shoulder straps to centre seam and to the sides.

Tack and stitch the darts, slit them, and press open. Cut away any surplus material. Tack, stitch and press. Make up the brassiere lining in the same way. Lay the top edges of lining and brassiere together, right sides facing, tack and stitch. Turn right side out, and press. Fold the remaining material as shown in diagram A, then cut out front and back of slip as indicated. (The pieces left over from garment are shaded.) Cut off a strip 4 inches deep from top front (see broken line on diagram A) with which to face top back. Turn in and tack lower edges of brassiere and lining, separately. Insert top of skirt front between them, and stitch. Tack the side seams, leaving 10 inches open for placket at left side.

Finishing Touches

Shoulder straps, which can be made from surplus material or ribbon, to garment, and try on inside out. Get a friend to pin up the side seams, fitting them closely to figure above the waistline, and loosely over the hips, where extra seam allowance has been provided. Tack and stitch the seams, press them towards back, trim away surplus material, and fell. Neaten the placket with crossway pieces of material or bias binding and fasten with hooks and eyes. Turn up hem to required length.

Iced drinks were served to Solomon

KING SOLOMON was the first man to think of icing his drinks. Snow was collected and kept in deep trenches.

Alexander the Great describes using a similar method while laying siege to Petra, in Arabia. He covered snow-filled trenches with branches, preserving the snow for a considerable time.

Until recently snow was kept for use in summer in exactly the same way in Portugal.

The old Greeks and Romans all knew the trick of cooling drinks in earthenware pots by evaporation in the sun.

The use of snow for cooling drinks was introduced into France in the sixteenth century, and was for a long time considered "voluptuous."

Profits in ice

When it became a popular luxury French farmers made big profits trading in ice and snow. One year after a mild winter some Hamburg merchants sent a ship to Greenland to fetch a load of ice, "therefrom making great profits."

Blasius Villafraña, a Spaniard "practising physic" in Rome in 1550, claimed to be the first man to discover the use of saltpetre as a freezing agent.

From him Italians learned how to make the first ice. They introduced ice to France, and early in the eighteenth century "lemonade ice" and ice-coated fruit were popular.

Bacon and Boyle both described methods of freezing with salt, but considered artificial ice of purely academic interest.

Not until the Italians introduced hockey-poke, did we become ice-conscious, and early in the nineteenth century we began to import shiploads of ice from Wenham Lake, near Boston, U.S.A.

ACHES & PAINS

Treat Them Seriously

says a PHYSICIAN

MANY symptoms are common to a large variety of disorders, but they do not all indicate serious disease.

What the patient complains of is a guide to the doctor in making a diagnosis, but to the patient himself his symptoms are all-important.

Odd aches and pains are the commonest. They accompany many ailments and sometimes result from trivial causes although they may be connected with serious trouble.

Aches and pains are generally present in most types of rheumatism, but they are also many acute illnesses. In children aches and pains which persist should be regarded with the greatest care.

Often these are signs of rheumatism. In the young this is a serious condition, which may result in lasting damage to the heart.

Wrong Diagnosis

Frequently these persistent pains are wrongly put down to growth. For there are no such things as "growing pains."

A child who is believed to be suffering from growing pains should be put to bed and a doctor consulted. Early treatment may safeguard his future well-being.

Aches and pains are always present in rheumatic affections. In acute rheumatism (rheumatic fever) pain is severe, but it is accompanied by fever and swollen joints, and there is usually little doubt about the correct diagnosis.

Chronic rheumatism is also a painful condition. In the type which affects elderly people one joint only is often the culprit. In other types several joints may be involved. Rheumatism which begins with swelling of any joint should be treated seriously, for neglect may be followed by a general infection of most of the others.

It is important to keep the joints supple in the chronic form of rheumatism. Massage by a skilled masseur is of great benefit. But should at any time the trouble become acute, rest is the only safe treatment.

Massage and movement may cause a sudden spreading of the condition. Chills should be avoided, for these are liable to light up the condition at any time.

Chronic dyspepsia and constipation are likely to aggravate rheumatic infections. Over-eating should be avoided, but remember that it is dangerous to play about with your diet if you are a rheumatic subject.

The general health and strength must be maintained. As a rule, too much sweet stuff aggravates the disorder, and red meat is best eaten only once a day.

Aches and pains often result from muscular rheumatism. These pains may settle in the back or in the limbs and shoulders.

After Stopping

They may come on suddenly for no apparent reason. The patient may have been stooping down, gardening, perhaps, when on rising an acute pain, like a stab, passes through his back.

Lumbago is often thought to be due to lifting weights, and on that account put down to a strain—which it is not.

In these cases heat is the remedy. Hot water bottles, hot sand in bags, a hot brick wrapped in flannel, ironing the affected part with a flat iron, heated to a good temperature, first protecting the skin with flannel or brown paper—all give relief.

Good Cooking

Marrow Dishes

VEGETABLE marrows are usually dull and watery from insufficient draining after things, very often suffering they have been cooked. If they are served with a sauce poured over them, there is usually a watery margin to it which looks very unappetising.

If you want your marrow plainly boiled, nothing is better with it than a little melted butter, and a sprinkling of freshly chopped parsley over the top is an even greater improvement. Here are some more exciting dishes.

Stuffed Rings

HAVING peeled the marrow, cut it into rings about an inch and a half thick, remove the seeds, and put the marrow rings in a sieve for half an hour. Then boil them for a quarter of an hour, drain very well and when well-drained, cold strips indeed and arrange them in a large of parboiled marrow and snute them shallow buttered fireproof dish.

Have your stuffing, whether of mince-meat or a forcemeat, ready parsley before serving.

Fried with Onions

JUST as you can make Lyonnaise potatoes by frying sliced cooked potatoes in butter sprinkled with salt in a sieve for half an hour. Then boil them for a quarter of an hour, drain very well and when well-drained, cold strips indeed and arrange them in a large of parboiled marrow and snute them shallow buttered fireproof dish. Have your stuffing, whether of mince-meat or a forcemeat, ready parsley before serving.

SPHINX TELLS OF A PHARAOH'S DREAM

Cairo, Nov. 20.

Hundreds of labourers transported from Upper Egypt, digging away the huge banks of sand which surrounded the Sphinx on its eastern side, have made a thrilling discovery—an eighteenth dynasty stela (tablet) of white limestone bearing 27 lines of hieroglyphics and measuring 6ft 8ins by 12ft.

It records that the stela was erected by Amen Hotep the Second as a memorial of his pilgrimage to the Sphinx, the fabulous monster which gazes across the valley of the Nile, when he ascended the throne at the age of 18.

It relates how he drove in his chariot from Memphis and visited the Great Pyramids, which are monuments to Sheps and Khafren.

The hieroglyphics state that Amen Hotep possessed herculean strength—that nobody else was able to pull his bow, relate his deeds of prowess and horsemanship, and record the fact that he invented a kind of arrow never before used in Egypt.

Near this stela Professor Selim Bey Hassan, the Egyptian archaeologist, also discovered three lion-headed sphinxes of lime-stone.

The Sun God decorations, in the form of sphinxes, surrounding the head of the stela, are scarred with marks supposedly caused by camp fires of Egyptians who, thousands of years ago, sheltered in its lee from the desert winds.

The discovery, it is believed, will throw light on the long line of Pharaohs—how they made pilgrimages from Thebes and elsewhere to Luxor, where they erected small temples in honour of Ra. During his excavations Professor Hassan also unearthed the portico of a temple erected by Mer Neptah, the Pharaoh of the Book of Exodus.

A stela previously discovered rests between the paws of the Sphinx. Erected by Thutmose IV, it relates how, when hunting in the vicinity, he lay down beside the monument and fell asleep.

SUN GOD'S PLEA

He dreamed that the Sun God spoke to him, begging him to clear away the sand from around the Sphinx and saying:

"Thou shalt be to me a protector. For my manner is as if I were ailing in all my limbs. The sand of the desert upon which I am has reached me; turn to me to have that done which I have desired, knowing that thou art my son, my protector. Come hither! Behold, I am with thee; I am thy leader." Thutmose cleared away the sand, built a small temple between the paws, and restored the lower portions of the monument.

The Sphinx was again cleared of sand by the Ptolemies, who also restored some of the lower portions and carried on the rites of the ancient Egyptians in the small temple directly in front of the monument.—Reuter.

50,000,000 Visitors For New York

1939: WORLD FAIR New York, Nov. 20.

"Building the World of Tomorrow" will be the central theme of the New York World's Fair of 1939, commemorating the 150th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as first President of the United States. Fifty million visitors are expected during the first year.

Construction of buildings to cost $125,000,000 will begin in December, on 1,216 acres on the shore of Flushing Bay, Long Island.

Surrounding a central Theme Tower 250 feet high will be exhibits divided into four chief groups, illustrating the advance of the modern world and a section reserved for amusement and entertainment. Within these groups will be ten zones, depicting a phase of the fair's central theme, devoted to clothing, shelter, education, government and co-operation, the arts, the basic industries, health, recreation, sustenance, and public and social service. Each of the ten zones will have a central exhibit, and special structures illustrative of the industrial, commercial and social problems and achievements of the world to-day.

50,000 BENCHES An amusement centre will extend a mile along the main lagoon behind Flushing Meadow Lake, but entertainment, recreation and restaurants will be provided throughout the entire grounds. Provision will be made for 50,000 benches along the avenue inside the grounds, and 10,000 trees will be planted this year.

Cutting through the centre of the fair grounds will be its main axis, leading from the central Theme Tower of the Ceremonial Centre, a parade ground, and to the Federal Building at the east. The Theme Tower will panorama the forward march of the arts and sciences, and the unity of peoples and nations in the modern world. In the Ceremonial Centre, as planned, distinguished visitors will be welcomed formally. A Marine Amphitheatre will be built on a semi-circular island 100 feet offshore in a lagoon at the north end of Flushing Meadow Park, where visitors will be entertained by opera, drama, water spectacles, pageants and swimming contests and fireworks. No decision has been announced on the possibility of a public swimming beach.

A peripheral bus route around the core of the fair has been designed to move visitors from one exhibit to another in orderly progression. Transportation facilities are designed to bring 100,000 persons to the fair grounds every hour by automobile, bus, train, subway, airplane and ship.

Grading and levelling of the fair grounds has been under way since June. Permanent building construction will be begun in April, 1937, and all buildings will be completed by January 1, 1939, leaving four months for interior decorations and exhibits.—United Press.

Soviet Restores Glory Cathedral Ivan the Terrible's Vanity Built

Moscow, Nov. 25.

St. Basil's Cathedral on Red Square, most Asiatic and picturesque building in Moscow, will be restored to its original appearance just as it was when built by Ivan the Terrible in celebration of his victory over Kazan in the middle of the 16th century.

A popular legend records that Ivan blinded the architect when the cathedral was completed, to prevent his building anything else so beautiful, but whether this is true or not, the ancient structure remains one of the unique structures of the world.

Each dome is of a different shape and colour, but age has dimmed the tones, and inside the ancient frescoes in many places are hidden under many layers of later origin.

D. P. Sukhov, Soviet architect, has begun the work of restoration, based on a detailed study of the architecture and decoration of the church.

The external walls on the eastern side already have been restored, but the complete work will occupy three years. Difficulties involved are shown by the discovery that in the central part of the cathedral the original architecture is concealed under rough putty and painting done in the 18th century.—United Press.

BRACELET WORN BY CLEOPATRA

Cuckfield (Sussex), Nov. 25.

A BRACELET said to have been worn by Cleopatra, last independent Queen of Egypt, who died 2,000 years ago, and other jewellery has been stolen from a case in a motor-car left in Harriet Street, Lowndes Square, S.W.

Its owner, Miss Gertrude Pickering, a member of a well-known Sussex family, lives at Court House Farm, an ancient residence near Cuckfield Church.

To-night Miss Pickering told me that the bracelet was discovered some years ago by her fiancé, Count Byron de Prorok, when he led the Franco-American archaeological expedition to North Africa.

"An ordinary person looking at the bracelet would attach little value to it. It consists of onyx, emeralds and pearls. The stones are meant and unpublished in the raw state in which they were discovered. They are all threaded together on a gold wire."

"PRICELESS" "I can put no value on the bracelet—which is a museum piece and priceless. The thief will find it a little embarrassing to sell."

LIFE ON NORTH SEA ISLAND

New York, Nov. 21.

Miss Sally Salminen, a pretty Finnish kitchenmaid working here, has won a prize of £400 offered by a Finnish book-publishing firm for the best novel written in the Finnish language. She was informed of her success in a cable from Helsinki to-day.

Miss Salminen came to America six years ago from the Aaland Islands in the North Sea, and her novel, "Katrina," is based upon memories of her life there in a little village of 400 inhabitants, mostly fishermen and sailors. She will shortly return to her island home to revisit her family and receive the award.

She said to-day that she had been a year writing her book in snatches of leisure in between her housework. She modestly admitted that she had never had a formal education, but said she had always liked to read, especially books of a scientific nature.

World Race For Sea Power

35,000-TON VESSELS

By A Naval Correspondent

THE French Government has, I learn, decided to build a third battleship of the 35,000-ton class, mainly because of the rapid development of the German Navy.

This will raise to five the number of French battleships laid down since 1932.

Details of the four previous vessels are as follows:

Name of Ship	Displacement	Speed	Armament
Dunkerque	35,000 tons	29½ knots	8—12ins.
Strasbourg	35,000 tons	29½ knots	8—12ins.
Richelieu	35,000 tons	29½ knots	12—18ins.
Jean Bart	35,000 tons	29½ knots	12—18ins.

The new French programme further includes a large cruiser and a group of submarines.

Germany is completing two 20,000-ton battleships, the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, and is reported to have begun two vessels of 35,000 tons. Italy will shortly launch the 35,000-ton ships Vittorio Veneto and Littorio.

Great Britain's only post-war battleships are the Nelson and Rodney, launched in 1925, but the new vessels, King George V. and Prince of Wales, are to be laid down in January. In his speech at the Navy League dinner on Tuesday the First Lord indicated that they would be ships of 35,000 tons.

Two battleships of this tonnage are to be started in the United States early next year, and according to reports from Tokyo Japan is to lay down one or two ships of the same size. Altogether, therefore, 17 battleships, with an aggregate of 500,000 tons, may be under construction in the near future.

Robert Donat's £120,000 For Four Films

Robert Donat is to play opposite Marlene Dietrich in "Knight Without Armour."

Mr. Donat's asthma is completely subdued after a prolonged illness during which he could have earned £20,000. He was examined recently by Lord Horder and pronounced fit.

He will begin work soon on what will be the first of four pictures to be made for London Film Productions on a basis which may yield to him £30,000 per picture.

The rise of Mr. Donat from a small part in "The Private Life of Henry VIII" to starring parts in "The Count of Monte Cristo" and "The Ghost Goes West" is one of the real life romances of the film world.

IF YOUR LITTLE GIRL

Still Plays with Dolls

Before you know it that little girl of yours will be grown up. But now—her needs are a child's needs. She must be carefully watched; she must be encouraged in regular habits of elimination. When constipation does occur—she should have a child's laxative.

For harsh, adult laxatives may double her over with a gripping pain—or upset her digestion... a sure proof that they are too strong for a child's delicate system.

Be cautious. Give your child Castoria—it is the laxative made especially for children—from babyhood to eleven years. It is gentle—yet thorough. It contains no castor oil, no harmful, habit-forming ingredients. And children take it willingly—they love its "candy" taste!

For constipation, for colic due to gas, upset stomach and the first symptoms of a cold, always give your child Castoria.

Get a bottle today. Discover the ideal laxative for your child—the laxative that is made especially for children, from babyhood to eleven years.

CINEMA
NOTES.

Easily the most delightful potpourri of beauty, wit, music, and rhythm offered during the current season,
"The Big Broadcast of 1937" which is showing at the Queen's Theatre and Alhambra Theatre simultaneously, brings to the screen a generous helping of the air-wave's most outstanding performers aided by a host of the screen's best entertainers.
Scintillating, gay, tuneful and often hilariously funny, "The Big Broadcast of 1937" includes Jack Benny, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Shirley Rodman and his orchestra, Shirley Ross, Rory Milland, Frank Forest, Benny Fields, Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony Orchestra and many other outstanding singers, dancers, musicians, comedians and specialty performers. The story deals with the romance that blossoms between Miss Ross and Milland when the latter is assigned to trick her off the air by Forest, an orchestra leader, and Benny, the studio manager. She discovers the deception and breaks with Milland. Gracie Allen, sponsor of a programme, teams her with Forest and they become popular.
An air wedding is planned for the two but when the moment arrives Miss Ross flees. She is found after a hectic chase and rushed to the studio to go through with the wedding as per schedule. She does—and finds herself married to Milland.
All of this is done to excellent dancing and splendid music both "swing" and "sweet". Mitchell Leisen was the one who directed "The Big Broadcast" and Adolph Zukor, the producer.

"The Last of the Mohicans"
A true picture of the early American Indian and the early American pioneer is offered in "The Last of the Mohicans", Reliance Pictures' colourful film version of the immortal James Fenimore Cooper classic which is showing to-day at the King's Theatre with Randolph Scott, Binnie Hurnes and Henry Wilcoxon heading a truly all-star cast. The tribal life, times and customs of the Mohican Tribe of Upper New York State in the middle years of the eighteenth century are vividly and faithfully reproduced with no pity or synthetic sympathy injected.
Brave Uncas Magua are there, as is Nette Bymore or Hawkeye, the tornal pioneer. Others prominently featured in the cast are Bruce Cabot, Hendler Angel, Phillip Reed, Robert Barat, Hugh Buckler and "B" Miller.
Robertson Philip Dunne prepared the screen play of the familiar story of love and adventure in a country in the making from an adaptation by John Buidenston, Paul Perez and Daniel Moore. George B. Seitz directed the film which was produced by Edward Small for release through United Artists. The photography is by Robert Planck, and the musical background by Nathaniel Shklier.
"The Last of the Mohicans" is a Hurry M. Goetz presentation.

"Suzy" War-time intrigue is the background, but the sacrificing love and courage of a woman is the theme of "Suzy", with Jean Harlow in the title role, which opened last night at the Majestic Theatre.
The picture was directed by George Fitzmaurice from the novel by Herbert Gorman. Franchot Tone and Cary Grant appear in support of Miss Harlow, who scores the triumph of her glamorous career as an American chorus girl who is stranded in London just as the war begins. The story reveals the European war-time spy system. The girl marries a young inventor who is shot under circumstances which point to her guilt. Believing him dead, she runs away to Paris, heart broken and alone. There, as time passes, she meets an aviator and they are married. The bridegroom becomes involved with spies and the first husband appears on the scene. He and the American girl realize the depth of their love and at the same time their helplessness, but destiny takes a hand to help them. There is stark drama in the climax, which restores cheerful lovers to one another in a scene of spectacular heroism.
The audience last night was enthusiastic in its praise of the picture and Miss Harlow undeniably scored a personal triumph.

DARE TO BE A LOWBROW

complete loss of himself. But to an acute eye it is a pathetic sight.
As a people we are profoundly deficient in artistic education, but not one in a hundred has the courage to own up to his lack of critical appreciation.

Artistic snobs, who form a large proportion of visitors to the principal galleries, get hold of a few well-worn cliches about the "wonderful sunsets" of Turner, the "flesh and blood" portraits of Romney, the "rounded cherubs" of Botticelli, making this meagre equipment serve for any aesthetic discussion they may have the misfortune to run up against.

Better a hundred times a want of taste, honestly admitted, than a sham predilection which is a stupid lie.
For, after all, the individual who lacks knowledge and confesses it may be on his way to learning, but the showy pretender will remain an ignoramus to the end.

CYCLE THEFT EPIDEMIC

ANOTHER CASE IN KOWLOON

Ho Wing-shu, 26, unemployed, saw an unattended bicycle outside 23 Fook Wah Street on November 13, and promptly rode off with it, selling it some time later to another man.
The owner of the bicycle, Young Wah, 21, saw the purchaser in Canton Road on November 28, and had him arrested. However, the purchaser explained how he had come into possession of the machine and produced a receipt as proof. He was allowed to go free, and the next day he saw Ho in Cook Street, Hung-hom, and arrested him.
Appearing before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, Ho was sentenced to one month's hard labour.
Det.-Sergt. Riddell, prosecuting, said that in Shamshuine alone, there had been eight bicycle thefts reported in November.

CHOPPER ATTACK

MAN SENTENCED ON TWO COUNTS

Another man charged with a chopper attack came before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. He was Kwan Cheung, 28, bricklayer, and admitted assaulting another bricklayer, Choi Yuen, 24, in Nallan Road, near Prince Edward Road, on November 22.
Det.-Sergt. J. Hunter said a policeman, notified by a passer-by, came upon the two men fighting, and arrested defendant, who was using a chopper. The other man had a slight cut in his left hand. It appeared that defendant had been continuing a quarrel.
Defendant was fined $30, or six weeks' imprisonment, for the attacks, and $10, or one month, for possession of the chopper.

NEW LOCARNO
PROSPECTS

In his reference to the nation's military obligations last week, Mr. Anthony Eden made it clear that Britain is still anxious to see a new Western European settlement concluded, to take the place of the Locarno Pact, which Germany has denounced. A well-known commentator, writing from home, however, hazards the view that the prospects of a new Locarno being negotiated are not too bright. There are two elements in the proposals for the new Treaty that to British eyes seem of vital importance. First, owing to the advent of air power, Britain is no longer an island, invulnerable to attack, and therefore, though ten years ago she was quite willing for the sake of peace in Western Europe to guarantee others' security without obtaining any reciprocal guarantee for herself, to-day she is asking that obligations of this character should be equally binding on all. In the second place, it is realised that it would be a mistake to tie the hands of France and Great Britain by a Western Pact in such a way as to leave Germany free in Central and Eastern Europe. Moreover, Italy appears to be definitely opposed to making the guarantees of the new Locarno reciprocal and Germany to allowing any reference to Eastern Europe in a pact that Herr Hitler contends should be confined to the West alone. There have been long delays in the negotiations, but the ball is kept rolling by occasional notes of enquiry from Italy and Germany. During the last few weeks, two events have occurred which are likely to have a profound effect on the future of the new Locarno. Belgium has made a striking announcement about her own foreign policy, which, whatever else it may signify, clearly reveals her dislike of regional agreements and her determination, so far as her own armaments can secure that end, to remain neutral in "the next war." She will abide by obligations already incurred, and especially the League of Nations Covenant—but she will not add to them—especially in the form of regional pacts. The Italian and German Foreign Ministers have met in Berlin to see how far their conflicting interests, e.g. in the Danube Valley, may be reconciled, and how far harmony can be achieved in their respective foreign policies. It is very probable that Belgian coldness and Italian and German veiled opposition to the new Locarno may result in the whole idea being abandoned. Though this may appear at first sight to be a disaster, it could be a blessing in disguise, if it brought the peace-loving nations away from reliance on regional pacts back to the League of Nations, which, if faithfully interpreted, would give all that the regional pact promises—and more.

RACE PURITY is JUST A MYTHsays Lord Raglan, who has made Anthropology a life-study.with fair hair and blue eyes.
The last two, taking mankind as a whole, are very uncommon characteristics.Whether these racial types are due to diverse origins, to mixture of earlier races, to climate, or to chance variation, is disputed. It appears, however, that if whatever causes operated in the past to produce these varieties are still operating, their movements are too slow to be perceived.It is possible, for example, that blackness of skin was developed as a response to a hot climate, but it is quite certain that people who migrate to a hot climate do not develop a black skin, even in thousands of years.

ONE OF THESE EIGHT PEOPLE IS ENGLISH: WHICH?

Miss England, 1934, and the head of the Krupp munition works in Germany.
Below, from left to right: An Austrian quarrymaster, a Danish beauty queen, the president of the Swiss Confederation, and a girl athlete from Hungary.Of these two are black, the Negroid and the Australoid, distinguished from each other by the Negroid having woolly hair and the Austral-oid wavy hair.Then comes the yellow or Mon-golid race, which includes the people of Eastern Asia and the "Indians" of America. This race has a yellow or tawny skin, high cheekbones, and black, straight hair.Coming nearer home, we find three races. Of these the most numerous is the Mediterranean or brown race with a sallow or light brown skin, short and slight body, black wavy hair, and a long head with a narrow forehead and thin, sharp-featured face. It is found inNorthern India, Persia, North Africa, and Southern Europe, and has many representatives in the British Isles.The Alpine race is found throughout the inland parts of Europe and Asia Minor, and is predominant in many European countries, including France and Germany. In Britain, though less common, it is fairly numerous. Its members are usually short and rather squat, with round heads, snub noses, and straight dark hair.The last race, the Nordic, is much the least numerous, and is almost confined to the shores of the Baltic and the North Seas.
Its members are tall, long-headed,Parts of South America are as hot as any part of Africa, yet the Indians who have lived there for untold centuries are not black, but yellowish brown. Conversely, the Tasmanians had lived probably for many thousand years in a climate like that of England, yet they were black, or nearly so.In Europe there are no real racial divisions.
The Germans and the French are two political groups of mixed racial type. The Germans are, roughly, two-thirds Alpine and one-third Nordic, while the French are something like half Alpine, one-third Mediterranean, and one-sixth Nordic.The original Celts, who conquered half Europe, were largely Nordics, yet the British "Celts" of to-day are chiefly Mediterranean, whereas the Bretons are chiefly Alpine. Similarly, the Jews of Europe, who are mostly descended from converts made by Jewish missionaries at the beginning of the Christian era, are of very mixed but chiefly Alpine type.The whole idea that there are innate mental differences between people of different races is based upon prejudice rather than upon fact. This applies not merely to alleged differences between European races, but to alleged differences between whites, blacks and yellows.Intelligence tests carried out in Australia and South Africa have shown that black children are not inferior in intelligence to white children. These results have caused some surprise, but there is no reason why they should. Intelligence in children is the result of quick sight and quick hearing.Every child born with good eyes and good ears is born intelligent, though in most cases the child is soon made stupid by disease, dull surroundings and dogmatic teaching.So-called racial differences, so far as our evidence goes, are merely differences in upbringing.
Nationalism exists and thrives on the entirely false belief that these artificial, and often non-existent, differences are innate and unalterable.How is it, then, that we often can, or think we can, tell a Jew from a Christian, or a Frenchman from a German? The answer is that every human group, whether religious, linguistic, or even professional, has its characteristic facial expression.Many Jews have a trick of drawing up the corners of the nostrils; many Frenchmen have a trick of slightly pursing their lips and raising their brows; and we have our own tricks by which foreigners recognise us. In the same way Mohammedans tend to have a rather gloomy, fatalistic expression.Anyone can stand in front of a looking-glass and make himself look like a conventional Frenchman, Jew, or sergeant-major, but it is impossible for a man of the Alpine race to make himself look like a Nordic, even if he is Hitler himself.To-day's Thought A PEOPLE still, whose common ties are gone,
who, mixed with every race,
are lost in none.
—GEORGE ORABEE.

Dare To Be A Lowbrow

CAN you read the works of Dickens, Thackeray, Scott, and the other classic novelists, from cover to cover, with complete enjoyment? No?
Neither can I.Can you walk through any great picture gallery, gazing in rapt admiration at the pictures which rank in the opinion of artists as masterpieces of the brush? Frankly, I cannot.I do not brag about my want of appreciation of the work of the great painters. It is a defect in my education. All my life I have been too busy at my own particular job to acquire sufficient knowledge of the principles and traditions of art to enjoy myself in an art gallery.While, as I say, this is nothing to boast about, it is certainly nothing to be ashamed of, and I refuse absolutely to apologise for my ignorance of things which I have never had the time or opportunity to learn.It is the same with music. I listen on the wireless to all sorts of more or less tuneful sounds, but for the life of me I cannot tell whether, judged by the ear of the expert, the tunes which please me are good music or bad.

A HOPELESS PHILISTINE

I like any kind of joyful noise.
Seldom can I give a name to any piece of music unless I have been told it beforehand. Several times I have listened to playing which has delighted me, and been told afterwards that it was something from Chopin or Brahms. No one was more surprised than I was. As far as my musical taste goes it might just as easily have been a merry jingle from Jack Hylton or Henry Hall.Even as regards eating and drinking there are similar conventions which "the best people" are supposed to obey through inborn superiority oftaste. Here, again, I am afraid I am a hopeless Philistine. I would rather eat a tasty savoury than the choicest caviare and I like cabbage far better than asparagus. When it comes to drinking, the only beverage I really enjoy is beer.When I was younger I used to feel a little ashamed of my failure to appreciate the things which superior people told me were beyond all question the best. Somehow I felt that I was a low fellow with vulgar tastes.But I have lived long enough to know that a man's genuine likes or dislikes are his own, not to be altered by copying the habits of other people, and that to stick to the things he genuinely enjoys is the only way to get his rightful share of the pleasures of life.

"TOO CLEVER"

Of course, if you follow my plan you will sometimes be sneered at. By fools, it is true, but they will sneer.
The sneerers will be people called highbrows. You have no doubt met them. They are a peculiar breed.Do not confuse a "highbrow" with a man, or it may be a woman, of lofty taste and culture, wide reading, and profound knowledge. For, you see, no man ever calls himself a highbrow. It is an epithet bestowed upon him by ordinary chaps like you and me.If we meet him in a public-house or a club, shall we say, we instinctively dislike him. Something in his speech and manner freezes us. Indeed, I always wonder where the highbrow can possibly feel at home.
If he is in the company of really intellectual people he is just as uneasy there. They like him no better than we do. They gauge to a nicety his mental calibre, which is seldom high.
The highbrow is happiest when he can gather around him a group of people, budding highbrows themselves, who will hang upon his everyword with avid attention, remarking when he has finished talking that he is "too clever for them" and his conversation "above their heads."
Such compliments as these he swallows greedily.It is all very silly, because ten to one he has been spouting a lot of rubbish about science, philosophy, or literature, winning the respect of his audience because he has a smattering of these subjects of which they know nothing at all.In fact, the highbrow is not a man of exceptional intellect or culture, but just an intellectual snob. The lengths he will go to in order to keep up his pretence of intellectualness are almost beyond belief. There are people who parade in their bookcases the works of authors who are "nice to know," while stacking hidden cupboards with the books they really like reading which do not bear the classic stamp.

BOOKS FOR SHOW

A man I knew, when he married and set up a home, went and asked a clergyman what books a man of taste and education ought to display on his shelves. Suitably advised, he straightway bought the lot in handsome bindings. That was ten years ago, and there the books are to-day, as good as new, never having been opened except perhaps once in a way by visiting friends.It is not that this man dislikes reading. On the contrary, he devours several books a week. They are mostly of the "thriller" type, detective stories, and so on. These do not adorn his bookshelves where de luxe editions of Shakespeare, Milton, and Carlyle stand in all their splendour.
The best joke of all is to see this precious humbug show his friends round his library. He has learned a few wisecracks, and just enough literary patter to save him from making a

Home Secretary May Stop 'Black Cap' Farce

By A Special Correspondent

JUDGES may soon be given the right to avoid passing the death sentence in cases where circumstances make it unlikely that the sentence will be carried out.

When Parliament reassembles Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, will be pressed to do away with the death sentence in these cases. There is reason to believe he sympathises with the demand, although there are administrative difficulties in the way.

The most important is that it would be left to the judge to decide in which cases it was "unlikely" the sentence would be executed. The "prerogative of mercy" is exercised only by the King acting on the advice of the Home Secretary.

A plan to avoid what has been called the "solemn farce" of donning

"VERY SERIOUS ALLEGATIONS" SETTLEMENT AND APOLOGY

A slander action against the Hon. Barbara Lais Yardie-Buller, aunt of Lord Churston, of Chesterfield House, Mayfair, was settled before Mr. Justice Swift in the King's Bench Division recently.

The plaintiff was Mrs. Johanna Augusta Beards-Gundy, of Manor Cottage, Buckland, near Aston Clinton, Bucks.

For the plaintiff, Mr. C. L. Henderson said that it was a term of settlement that he should make a statement.

He did not propose to call attention to the specific allegation in the statement of claim and in the defence; it would suffice to say that very serious allegations had been made by the defendant against the plaintiff, and it was absolutely necessary that Mrs. Beards-Gundy should bring the action in order to vindicate her character.

It was never her intention that she should bring this action for the purpose of making money; her sole desire was to make it known that there was no substance in the allegations made against her.

"In the defence, the plea of justification," continued Mr. Henderson, "is not raised, but there is a plea of privilege."

"In the circumstances Mr. Norman Birkett, K.C., with whom Mr. G. O. Slade appears for the defendant, is prepared to make a full apology on behalf of his client, who is willing to pay the plaintiff the full amount of her costs as between solicitor and client."

"In these circumstances the plaintiff is glad to take the opportunity of composing the differences between her and the defendant to show that she could afford to be generous in this matter."

Mr. Norman Birkett, K.C., said all that remained was to make it quite plain that no aspersion of any kind rested upon Mrs. Beards-Gundy. The allegations were fully, unequivocally and completely withdrawn. Mrs. Beards-Gundy was entitled to leave the Court with the knowledge that her character was completely vindicated.

The publication alleged in the pleadings was of an extremely limited and special character. It was not a case that the allegations were broadcast, or that there was any secret or furtive dissemination.

A plea of "privilege" had been raised and that would have been the only matter before the Court.

It was never the intention of the Hon. Barbara Yardie-Buller to justify the matters, but merely to explain the circumstances in which the words were spoken. That however, was not now necessary.

Mr. Justice Swift said he thought the parties had acted extremely wisely and Mrs. Beards-Gundy could go away resting assured that there was no reflection remaining in regard to the matter.

Mr. Birkett said a sum for costs had been agreed, and the record in the case was accordingly withdrawn.

I'LL NEVER BE A MR. OBERON

—DAVID NIVEN

New York, Nov. 25. MERLE is in love—but DAVID says: "I'll never be a Mr. Oberon."

"HOPE deferred maketh the heart sick" is perhaps the thought in the mind of Merle Oberon as she stays here awaiting the arrival of film star David Niven.

Intending to sail in the Aquatania to-day, Merle changed her mind when she learned from David that he could not bid her good-bye at the pier. Influenza, he wired, had got him down while holiday-making in the south.

He hopes to arrive here at the end of the week in plenty of time to see the sights of New York with her before she sails in the Queen Mary.

WHEN the glamorous star arrived in New York she was very non-committal about the prospect of her marriage with Mr. Niven. It was "No," or "I don't know," or "Maybe"—perhaps Hollywood's way of saying, "Yes, but not yet."

There is also Mr. Niven's say in the matter. Despite his acknowledged affection for Merle he is determined to carve out his own career in films.

Hollywood chains prevent him from going to England with the girl of his heart. It is even doubtful whether work will permit him to get away to his home country by Christmas.

REPORTS have it that Merle has a clause in her film contract forbidding marriage. Those familiar with Hollywood routine say that such a clause is mythical.

In any event, whatever are the young couple's hopes of an early marriage, beautiful Merle reveals her romantic affection for David by causing Korda's studios in England to wait a week for the heroine of "I Claudius."

IT is almost certain that Mr. Pandro Berman, the producer responsible for most of the Astaire-Rogers and Katherine Hepburn films, will leave the Radio-Kelth-Orpheum (R.K.O.) organisation for an important executive post with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

MISS Loretta Young, who threatened to walk out of the Twentieth Century Fox Studios after refusing two parts, one because it was not suitable, has settled her differences with the company.

THE interlocutory divorce decree granted to Mrs. Mae Elizabeth Keaton, wife of Buster Keaton was made absolute yesterday. Although the original decree was granted on the application of his wife, it was Buster Keaton who applied for it to be made absolute.

MISS Mac West, who has had to keep to her room at Hollywood with a severe influenza cold, told a Daily Mail reporter on the telephone: "You may say I am not going west."

BRONCHOSCOPE AIDS STUDY OF TUBERCULOSIS

Denver, Nov. 15.

Constantly on the alert for new and effective ways of combating tuberculosis, medical science now is employing the bronchoscope as its latest weapon in the battle against the disease.

Use of the bronchoscope, an instrument for peering into the main windpipes of human lungs which has won wide publicity through its success in aiding removal of safety pins and other articles swallowed by children, was explained here by Dr. Harry E. Kleinschmidt of New York, director of health education of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Dr. Kleinschmidt emphasized that the instrument is an "aid" in diagnosis of tuberculosis and is not a "cure-all." It is being used successfully in the diagnosis of some tuberculosis cases, he said.

"Sometimes it is difficult to differentiate between tuberculosis and malignant infections of the lungs and abscesses," Dr. Kleinschmidt said.

"While the bronchoscope cannot look into the recesses of the lungs, it can look into the main windpipes and with its use is proving possible in some cases to make proper diagnosis which might be impossible by any other method."

"It might be described as a peri-scope which allows the physician to look into the patient's lungs."

Bootless Footballers To Play In The Local League

THE MIXED DOUBLES TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP: S. CHINA BOGEY ESTABLISHED

KUMAMON Rifles, Hong Kong's newest football team, which arrived here on Friday did not turn out for their first match on Saturday, but had a practice game in which, I am told, they displayed very promising form. Several of the players were only rubber feet, while others played barefooted. Whether they intend to turn out in league games like this I do not know, but I think it will add a touch of picturesque to local soccer pitches never before enjoyed. In Malaya and India it is common to see native teams play without any covering to their feet, and it is astonishing that at times they can send a stationary ball. The first time I saw such an exhibition it made me involuntarily shudder, for to the European there are few more tender and fragile parts of the body than the toes. Of course these bare-footed players usually kick with their instep. Even so there always appears to be the danger of stubbing a toe in the ground, which is not a very comforting thought. I rather think the Kumamons are going to provide Hong Kong with some out-of-the-ordinary football. It seems that they have a well-developed technique, but are weak in first-time kicking, which isn't to be wondered at if some of them are playing without boots.

Shield Tie Incident

NEARLY everybody interested in local football has his attention centred on the probable outcome of this evening's meeting of the Emergency Committee, adjourned from last week, which is studying and investigating the incident in the Shield match between Kowloon Chinese and the Club. A prolonged session allowed the Committee to delve fairly deeply into the affair, but the investigation could not be completed. Though the meeting is private and cannot be attended by members of the Press (a grave mistake this, I think), there have been rumours in plenty going around town as to the likely outcome of the enquiry. Most of them can be discounted, others which one cannot recall at the moment, certainly appear to have some foundation of accuracy. But whether this or that, it is to be sincerely hoped that the Emergency Committee will allow nothing to obscure its duty as an administrative body in a matter of such importance and of such possibly far-reaching influence. To dispense judgment in such a case may appear to demand severe treatment; but then the incident and the events connected with it are very serious, and it allowed to go by without any real exemplary action, may jeopardise the status quo of Hong Kong referees.

TEST CHANCES Hobbs Says The Odds Favour Australia

Fremantle. There is no doubt the odds are in favour of Australia in the forthcoming Test, said Jack Hobbs, international cricketer, who reached Fremantle in the Maloja last month to report for English and Australian newspapers during the English team's tour.

Australia had an abundance of good cricketers, while the game had been at a low ebb in England for the past three or four years so far as "top-notch finds" were concerned, he said. However, he was hopeful of Allen's team moulding into a strong combination. "England should get plenty of runs, but her bowling strength is problematical at this stage," he said.

but much less easy was the victory in the semi-final on Saturday of H. D. Rumpjohn and Mrs. Chin Ching-chai. From all accounts E. C. Fincher and Mrs. French should have won. They led two-love in the final set and were 40-30 on Mrs. Chin's service. Then came one of those moments which so often turn the course of a match. Fincher got a lovely volley to Mrs. Chin's backhand; it was apparently a winner all the way, but to everyone's astonishment the C.C.C. lady got to the ball and sent back an unreturnable shot. It was so completely unexpected that Fincher could only stand at the net helpless. Thus Rumpjohn and his partner saved a three-love deficit. Then later on Fincher and Mrs. French had point for a 4-2 lead, but Fincher, with all the credit for his disposal, put out a smash; thus it became three-all instead of 4-2. Another factor which went against the losers was Fincher's reluctance to use his cut-off volley in the middle of the court. As a result Mrs. Chin was able to employ her looping forehand drive to her heart's content when several times her returns simply shouted for an intervention on the part of Fincher. Both ladies played extremely well, Mrs. French keeping the rallies going in great style. But in the end she was played to a standstill. Rumpjohn was but a shadow of the player we used to see on the courts. He was right out of touch in the first set and did not begin to use his famous volley until late in the game. As one spectator said "It was merely a ladies' singles." This is something of an exaggeration, but it indicates how very much the ladies dominated the exchanges.

Fishlock Praised

AFTER Walter Hammond, the man who seems to have created most favourable comment among the Australian critics is Fishlock, the Surrey left-hander who is now on his first tour of Australia. This is rather curious as very little has been heard of him on the present tour, so much so that I have heard enthusiasts in Hong Kong expressing his inclusion. But Jack Singleton, the Australian cricketer, has formed a very high opinion of Fishlock. He says "Some of the Englishmen think Fishlock has a weakness to a ball that goes away suddenly, but what batsmen haven't. Fishlock gave the impression that he is well equipped in technique to circumvent all types of bowling. One cannot praise Fishlock too highly. It was not the bounciness, but his sense that impressed me, as his technique. Hammond's name, of course, is almost as much respected in Australia as Bradman's. The Gloucestershire man's play on this tour, if Walter is in the team, there will be huge crowds. But in this respect Leyland is fast threatening Hammond. The Yorkshireman has performed marvellously since recovering from his indisposition, and it is easy to imagine the relief Allen must feel concerning the left-hander's form so near to the first Test. One would like to have heard that Fagg and Hardstaff were doing better. Neither yet appears to have become accustomed to the very fast Australian wickets. But as one London writer recently pointed out, Fagg has a big temperament, and is not likely to allow a few low scores to upset his equilibrium.

The "Anticipated Unexpected"

WHEN the complete history of South China A.A. comes to be written, it will not be surprising to find one heavily-blackened, bordered page given over to the misfortunes of the senior team against the Hong Kong Football Club. Once again Club boys the horse-lough to soccer victories by taking along a team of reserves to Caroline Hill on Saturday and beating the Pride of China by the only goal scored. For the last three seasons the Club have been a very delicate team in the sides of South China "A", and slowly it is being forced upon us that the Happy Valley outfit constitute the champions' bogey team. The curious part of it is that South China invariably have most of the play, look good for any number of goals, send their vociferous supporters into raptures with dainty footwork and "tricky" movements, but leave the points behind with the Club. It has happened so often now that it is no longer true to describe the Club defeat of South China "A" as "sensational". It is now the anticipated unexpected. If you know what I mean. Honours in Saturday's match go to Syd Strange, Wilson, Pearce and Elliott. Floral wreaths to the whole of the Chinese.

K.C.C. TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Gray Beats Hung In Handicap Singles

S. A. Gray yesterday won the K.C.C. Handicap Singles "A" tennis tournament for the second time in five years when he defeated W. C. Hung, 7-5, 6-2.

Gray played from scratch, while Hung had the big handicap of over 30. The loser made light of this imposition in the early stages of the match, and seizing opportunities afforded by the inconsistencies of his opponent, and himself remaining wonderfully accurate in the face of a high wind, went to 4-1.

After that Gray recovered, and steadied himself to pull up to 3-5, then five-all, and finally to win the set in the twelfth game.

The winner went out to a two-love loss in the second set, and although Hung pulled him back to two-all, there was little in the game after this, Gray making full use of his handicap advantage.

In view of the none-too-pleasant conditions the match produced a good standard of play. Hung could not keep his opponent away from the net, and it was because he scored fairly consistently from the forecourt that Gray won.

It is interesting to observe that some players met in the final of this event in 1931, when Gray was winner by two sets to one.

RIFLES ALL AT SEA AGAINST NAVY DISINTEGRATED ATTACK GOAL DECIDES

(By "Veritas")

Royal Navy 1 Rifles 0

Not before this season has the generally acknowledged title of "Rifles" attack been made to look so puny as in this match at Cameway Bay yesterday. It was completely disintegrated by the thrilling first-time tackling of Wolverson and Telfer until only Ferguson and Erwin remained as any sort of threat to the Navy goal.

The Rifles, were, in fact, outplayed in most departments. However, their home display at centre-half marked them as the best half back on view. Laidlaw and Gairdner for good support, whereas the Rifles' wing halves were anything but impressive.

Perhaps the biggest mistake Rifles committed was to put Campbell in the attack. He was clearly so unaccustomed to the position that he groped his way through the match, barely contributing anything of merit, because he had so much of the ball, continually rendering abortive any attempts by the Rifles to get past Wolverson and Co.

Erwin, who ran in form in the second half, was badly neglected by his partner, while Ferguson, who would have scored several times if given proper through passes, was left entirely to his own devices, struggling in vain to get hold of the many well-placed crosses of his colleagues. It was an attack stripped of all method and understanding.

GOOD DEFENCE

Rifles were very much better served in defence, where Pickering and Stevens played determinedly against a quintette which proved the ball swiftly and cleverly along the back, but the defence moves the backs had to exploit some perfect positional play, and it is to their credit that only once were they passed, and then it was not in the nature of a clean break-through.

Navy played superior football in every respect. They did not part with the ball so hurriedly as the Rifles, yet they made much more ground and in far quicker time. Their passes were well directed and the players made things look easy by the neat manner in which they ran in possession.

Baxter was a dangerous attacker, while White thoroughly enjoyed himself making openings. If Tippet had been a little quicker in action on the left wing, there might have been a tally of goals.

Wolverson dominated the middle of the field and nearly always came out tops in his many duels with Campbell. He also saw to it that Ferguson was not allowed too much rope, though the Rifles' centre-forward was a lively headful and was not easy to keep quiet.

Wolverson had no peer on the field as full back. His big kicking, splendidly timed tackling and daring interceptions were as good as anything seen on the Navy ground this season.

Telfer was a worthy partner and his pair never let the Rifles like being passed. Rifles made something of a show in the first half, but they were not harmonious in attack and most of their sporadic thrusts could be easily countered. Navy played the more constructive football from the start and always looked good for goals.

The one which gave them two league points was the result of a fine shot by Baxter, which had with it the element of surprise. He shot on the run when about to be tackled and the ball sailed just underneath the bar with Conner looking on helplessly.

Rifles' goal has other narrow escapes after this, whereas Navy clinched was only seriously threatened once. This was towards the end of the match when Ferguson at last evaded the close attentions of Wolverson and Telfer and got through to shoot hard. But the ball rebounded off Conner's outstretched foot and Killen, who was following up, called over the bar from a fine position.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

The first round of the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club championship was played at Fanling yesterday.

A. K. Mackenzie beat G. Marshall, one up; R. K. Collings beat E. T. McMullen, four and three; D. J. Gilmore beat T. A. Pearce, one up; A. E. Lissaman beat D. J. Mackenzie, four and three; K. S. Robertson beat D. S. Robb, seven and six. Col. Blake beat J. Newton at the 19th. F. J. de Rome beat T. R. Charsels. D. S. Edward secured a forfeit from Major Shannon.

POLICE HAD THEIR CHANCES BUT THREW 'EM AWAY

Police 0 S. China "A" 1
(The Kowloon)

That Police could become a really first-rate team if only they could find forwards who would shoot for goal, was illustrated yet again yesterday when they lost to South China "A" after enjoying an equal share of the play.

That they did not at least share the point could be traced directly to the refusal of the inside trio to make use of opportunities. Parker, Green and Brooks constantly failed to shoot, when nicely positioned, thus leaving themselves easy victims for the fast-acting Li Tin-sung and Tam Kong-pak.

Police in midfield had nothing to learn from the champions, and territorially they enjoyed a fair balance of the exchanges. This was largely made possible by the resolute dis-organising of their half backs, of whom, though very outstanding, Pile and Mo, on the wings also accomplished some excellent work, but once the ball was in front of the Chinese goal, Police attack faded out of the picture.

South China didn't play as though they were capable of beating all and sundry teams in Hong Kong. Possibly some of this was due to reaction from Saturday's sorry affair. The forwards individually were clever, but their concerted movements lacked thrust and penetrative power. With Gough, North, Blackburn and Bone in good form, there was never any great chance of the Chinese moving developments into goals.

Li Tin-sung continued to add prestige to his reputation as a full back without superior in Hong Kong, but the half back line, robbed of Wong Moo-shun, never rose above mediocrity and appeared quite content to defend and to play a rather negative type of attack was more or less a one-man show. Fung King-cheung being alert and skilful, but inadequately supported. Wong Moo-shun was hopeless on the left wing and Tso Kwai-ching did not see enough of the ball to be able to get into his stride.

The deciding goal came in the first quarter of an hour when Fung King-cheung, who had been in the net, kicked the ball to back-heel cleverly into the net.

Cricketers' Autographs Ban Proposed

Sydney, at any rate, of the Australian cricketers is contemplating a ban, or at least some restriction, on the importation of the ubiquitous autograph-hunters who are preparing to descend on the M.C.C. test team.

Bert Oldfield, Stanley McCabe and Alan Kippax, among those who have raised their voices in support of the movement, says Austral News. "If people are genuinely interested in obtaining a player's autograph," said Oldfield, "I suggest that autograph books be sent to his hotel accompanied by a fee of threepence

Diocesan Boys' School put up a praiseworthy display against St. Stephen's College in a tennis match at D.B.S. on Saturday, losing only by the odd set in nine. The performance was in line with their victory over Central British School the previous week, as St. Stephen's boast one of the best schools tennis teams in the Colony. Results were:—

Lien Sik-lun and Lew On-sing (D.B.S.) lost to Ngo Chin-ent and Yung Song-lin 3-6; beat Tho Kai-seng and Oh Kheung-wan 6-0; beat Lim Kwai-yung and Kho Pia-chin by default.

Ip Yee-lut and Sai Fun (D.B.S.) lost to Ngo and Yung 3-6; lost to Tho and Oh 5-7; beat Lim and Kho 6-4.

D. Cray and D. Lyen (D.B.S.) lost to Ngo and Yung 6-7; lost to Tho and Oh 4-6; beat Lim and Kho 6-2.

Cray and Lyen played very well to pull up from 3-5 to five-all before losing to St. Stephen's best pair, Ngo and Yung in the twelfth game. On another court, Ip Yee and Hui Sai-fun (the latter playing in place of W. Lau), were rather unlucky to lose to Tho and Oh. Here again the Diocesan boys pulled up from 6-3 to square the score, but conceded the next two games.

COLLEGE'S EARLY LEAD

St. Stephen's won the first two sets and then went to 3-1. But the home players made a good recovery to square the match at three-all. The Diocesan boys pulled up from 6-3 to square the score, but conceded the next two games.

St. Stephen's led 2-1, 3-2 and 4-3, but the Diocesan boys won the eighth game, then had to concede the ninth. Cray served in the tenth game and should have won it easily, but several chances were missed and St. Stephen's won it largely on errors.

For St. Stephen's Ngo and Yung played with perfect understanding and won all three sets in excellent manner. Tho and Oh were a little fortunate to win two out of three, while Kho was the weak link in the Lim-Kho combination.

"Veritas" On Badminton

CHINESE Y.M.C.A. MUCH TOO STRONG FOR "B" DIVISION

To-night's Matches: St. Andrew's Without Henry Kew

Free Lances, who made a none-too-impressive debut in the men's badminton league last Monday are this week "At Home" to Chinese Recreation Club on the latter's court, which, I fear, means only one thing—defeat for the Free Lances.

They were without Austin, their new "star" against St. Andrew's, and I don't know whether he will be playing this evening. Free Lances can do with him, as his inclusion would mean a big strengthening up of at least one pair.

C.R.C. have a player who is beginning to make a name for himself in local badminton. P. C. Leung, who last season played for Kowloon Tong, has made tremendous improvement during the summer, thanks to constant practice at the Jockey Club, and he now ranks as one of the C.R.C. leading performers. His play in the mixed doubles last Friday was outstandingly good, and there is small doubt that if he continues to improve he will vie with the best of our talent if, and when, there are any representative honours going around.

St. Andrew's "A" receive the champions—Recreo "A"—and defeat appears to be inevitable. Henry Kew is still on the sick list which is a severe blow to the Saints. With him and Ernie Fincher operating together, St. Andrew's always stand a good chance of two games. Mr. Weill is to be introduced to the team as Sonny Bliss has already played one match for the "A" team and will therefore become ineligible for the "B" if he plays again.

The other two pairs will remain unaltered, but the most St. Andrew's can hope for is to snatch a couple of games.

CHINESE "Y" TOO STRONG

There is no question that when Chinese Y.M.C.A. applied for admission to the second division they completely misled the Badminton Association as to their playing strength. Performance so far have proved beyond doubt that the Chinese "Y" are as strong as any of the senior division teams, and that they cannot help winning the "B" Division championship.

It is rather unfortunate that it has turned out thus, as it was the aim of the Association to try and make the second division championship a good, open, sporting event. As it is much of the interest in it is threatened because of the pronounced superiority of one team, King's College alone look capable of extending the Y.M.C.A., but as they are by no means so well balanced, they are almost certain to lose when they meet.

This evening Chinese "Y" are hosts to St. Andrew's "B", and they will probably win nine-love, with the Saints spending most of the time picking up the shuttles from the floor.

Much more interesting is the match at Kowloon Tong where the "A" team receives King's College. I fancy Kowloon Tong will extend the College fairly well and may easily take three games from them.

The "midgets" of the division S. and S. Home and Kowloon Tong "B"—meet at Sailors and Soldiers Home, where anything may happen, though indications are the S. and S. will win their first points of the season.

"A" DIVISION
Free Lances v C.R.C.
St. Andrew's "A" v Recro "A"

"B" DIVISION
S. & S. Home v Kowloon Tong "B"
Chinese Y.M.C.A. v St. Andrew's "B"

LEAGUE CRICKET

BAXTER AND MULCAHY Partnership Of 154 FINE GAME AT I.R.C.

(By "Veritas")

Overshadowing everything else in the junior cricket league on Saturday was the first-wicket partnership by K. Baxter and W. Mulcahy of the Kowloon Cricket Club, who put on 154 runs against an indifferent I.R.C. attack, and so made possible a big win for the Kowloon team after a game in which fortunes had violently fluctuated.

This is the second time this season Baxter has scored over 90 runs against the Indians. He collected odd runs in a friendly at the K.C.C. at the start of the season. But Saturday's innings of 97 was not only more valuable, but far more exhilarating.

He gave one hard chance fairly early on, but otherwise was complete master of the bowling, which was chiefly featured by Jong hops on the leg stump.

Apart from J.S.A. Curreen and M. H. Abbas none of the Indians' attack could make any impression on Mulcahy and Baxter. The first-named hooked gloriously and found the boundary on ten occasions before losing his wicket for a well-made 60.

UNLUCKY DISMISSAL
Baxter's dismissal was most unfortunate. The winning hit had already been made, but another 15 minutes were left for batting. Receiving from Abbas, Baxter stepped in front of a straight one, but the bowler sportingly refrained from appealing. Baxter then only required three for his century. Then, off the last ball of the over, Baxter drove hard to mid-on. A run was started but the ball was felled, somewhat luckily and thrown to Baxter's end where he was treating. It seemed that the batsman was in when the ball broke the wicket, but the decision went against him.

Baxter's best strokes yielded him seventeen boundaries. He drove finely, and cut magnificently. Altogether a very good innings.

The first stage of the match went all in favour of the visitors, who, after winning the toss, put the Indians in to bat. But the I.R.C. lost their first four wickets for 29 runs. Baxter, bowling a good length and coming in a bit, taking three of them.

Then F. M. el Arculli, aided by a bit of loss, but nevertheless a cracking bowler, and A. K. Sufi, who was a model of accuracy, added 90 for the fifth wicket. Sufi's knock-off-60 was a splendid piece of batsmanship, while Arculli's 32 was invaluable.

Finally the Indians were able to declare at 174 for 9—a sporting closure which carried with it a challenge the K.C.C. could not ignore.

RECORD FOR GROUND?
Playing steadily, but punishing anything loose (and there was a lot of that stuff), Mulcahy and Baxter carried the score along at a pace of two runs a minute to 154 before Mulcahy hit too soon at a long hop on his leg stump and was clean bowled. But Dunne and Baxter easily hit off the remaining 21 runs.

I am told that the first wicket partnership between Mulcahy and Baxter constitutes a record for the I.R.C. ground, though my informant was not too certain about this, so that it must not be taken as gospel.

But it was a brilliant effort, and is further indication that K.C.C. boasts one of the, if not the, strongest batting sides in the second division.

Results in brief of Saturday's matches, and leading individual performances follow.

MACAO WINS BRILLIANT HOCKEY GAME AGAINST THE K.I.T.C.

PILE ON GOALS IN THE SECOND HALF

(By Our Own Correspondent)

Macao, Nov. 29.

In spite of the Race Meeting in Macao this afternoon, exceptionally large crowds turned out to witness the display of spectacular hockey when the Kowloon Indian Tennis Club, captained by A. P. Sousa, was eclipsed by the formidable Macao Hockey Club, the scores being 5-1.

Both teams were in fine form and during the first half, much excitement was provided by the clever movements on either side. Three minutes before the interval, the visitors broke away smartly and Azai Khan, inside right, registered the first goal with a hard shot.

The second half found Macao quickly equalizing as Amilear Angelo at left wing placed a neat angle shot from close range. Speedy distribution was a feature of the play of the local team, and amid excitement Angelo scored again ten minutes later.

GALLANT FIGHT

The visitors put up a gallant fight and constantly threatened the Macao goal. Pyara Singh at centre-forward was particularly prominent and worked dexterously with his fellow forwards.

Three short corners did not produce anything for Macao, but the well-directed shot by Pedro Angelo at centre-forward gave the home team a further lead as the high ball landed into the net. Macao's left winger exhibited his skilliness by penetrating the opposing defence and registering the fourth goal for his side and two minutes later, Pedro Angelo eluding Kishan Singh, the Indians left back, secured the final goal for Macao.

To-day's match was the best ever played on the Macao hockey ground. The visiting eleven played with splendid pluck and never conceded anything without vigorous struggle. On the whole they defeated their own purposes by holding the ball too long.

Pyara Singh shone with his magnificent tackling and accurate placing and, but for the watchful eye of Almada, custodian, would have scored several times. Tara Singh proved himself extremely dependable in his position at centre half. His midfield tactics would have accomplished satisfactory results but for the timely interceptions of the opposing defence. The visitors' backs worked prodigiously, Kishan Singh displaying remarkable coolness in the face of lightning movements and repeatedly holding the attack in suspense. The wings were clever in tackling, but often fumbled with the ball.

For Macao, Alex Airesa at centre-half was skilful and repeatedly put his forwards in favourable positions by fine passing. Recario and Lamart were strong in defence. Airesa, inside right, played amazingly clean hockey, and his stickwork did him full credit. Joao Nolasco and Amilear Angelo, constantly showed flashes of excellent form in the attacking combinations. They were hustled but retained themselves very disturbing to the opposing defence by fast hitting to centre.

TENNIS MATCH

The day's sports activities between the Kowloon Indian Tennis Club and Macao were also marked with a friendly doubles tennis tournament against the Civil Tennis Club this morning. The matches resulted in an easy win for Macao by 8 to 1.

The visitors were unaccustomed to the hard courts here and were further handicapped by the absence of Wuhuh and Rumpah. For the visitors the Hussain brothers played a fine game and were seen to advantage against Yuan and Vaz. Firdos Khan and M. A. Khan displayed good form in quite a few of the games. A. H. Mello and C. H. Silva played sound baseline tennis.

The results were as follows:—J. M. Fernandes and L. A. de Mello beat S. A. Hussain and S. S. Hussain 6-3, 6-3; beat Firdos Khan and M. A. Khan 6-4, 6-1; beat I. Mahan Singh and Johan Dad 6-2, 6-3. A. H. da Mello and C. H. Silva beat Hussain and Hussain 7-5, 2-6, 9-7; beat Khan and Khan 6-2, 6-1; beat Singh and Dad 7-5, 6-1. F. C. Yuen and C. Vaz beat Hussain and Hussain 2-6, 4-6; beat Khan and Khan 6-7, 7-6, 6-3; beat Singh and Dad 6-7, 7-5, 7-5.

It is nine years since the Kowloon Indian Tennis Club's team has visited Macao. The Club's tennis enthusiasts hope to meet the Macao players in Hongkong during the Yuletide holidays.

JACK MCLEAN FIGHTS A "HOODOO"

AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP STILL BEYOND HIS GRASP

The shadow of some inexplicable hoodoo seems to hang over the golfing career of Jack McLean.

Acc golfer, keen match player, competition favourite, and one of the most admired golfers among his dour hard-playing competitors, Jack has one great regret in his life.

He cannot win the Amateur Championship. Why? Practising for this great event he has played over courses and returned official records which beat the official records. He has played against formidable opponents and licked them hollow.

A GREAT FIGHTER
He takes pains not often seen in any other golfer—amateur or professional. Perhaps these pains are too great.

In practically every game in the championship he has shown himself not only a great golfer but a great fighter.

One of his greatest matches was in the championship at Prestwick in 1934, when he met Johnny Fischer in the third round.

Fischer, it will be remembered, was a member of the Walker Cup team which had triumphed at St. Andrews that year. A more recent recollection will be that Fischer beat Jack McLean in the Walker Cup matches in America at Pine Valley, New Jersey.

But to go back to that game at Prestwick. Before any of the matches had started Francis Oumet—as well as other members of the American team—had a quiet word with Jack and told him quite plainly that he was facing one of the finest amateur golfers in America—if not in the world.

But that fact had no terrors for Jack. Playing perfect golf, he won by 2 and 1.

Yet his hopes were short-lived, although he succeeded by beating another formidable American Jesse Guilford.

The hoodoo seemed to be operating, and down he went to Wallace, a local artisan who seemed to know every blade of the course.

A MAGNET FOR "ONES"
Twice winner of the Scottish title and twice Irish Amateur champion, it seemed a bit more than strange that Jack McLean should be beaten by the oddest of odd chances.

During the Irish Championship the hoodoo was very evident. McLean was playing as near perfect golf as one could wish for. But his opponent was—well, lucky. McLean's biggest shocks were when Eric Fiddian had two "ones". There was no competing against that sort of golf.

It would seem that Jack McLean was a magnet for "ones" that year. He had no fewer than four against him—one more than he had ever registered during his golfing career.

THE NEXT TIME
Now, Jack has got the one thing which might have given him the Amateur Championship years ago—confidence.

Hoodoo or no hoodoo, he believes in himself, and he realizes that past faults are understood now and pigeon-holed away in his brain. "The next time," he says, "it will be different."

That is what makes McLean a player who, because of his youth, enthusiasm, and carefully acquired skill, is bound to one day walk into the clubhouse to receive the cup presented to the Amateur Champion.

TELEGRAPH'S NEW SERIAL

THE STORY THUS FAR:

The Capulets and Montagues, mighty families of Verona, are sworn enemies. A mere word sets their henchmen to fighting and their street brawl endangers the property and persons of private citizens. A particularly bloody fight occurs outside the Cathedral the day of the Festival. The Prince of Verona threatens death to both families should they fight again. Lord Capulet is relieved to think his young daughter Juliet was not at church to witness the battle. Lord Montague wonders why his son Romeo was not on hand to help his nephew Benvolio against the Capulets.

INVITATION TO THE DANCE

SAW you Romeo, to-day? Lord Montague had asked. Benvolio had not answered because he preferred not to. He hadn't seen his cousin, no—but he knew too, that while other Montagues had been fighting, Romeo had been making love sonnets. He quickened his pace as he neared the fallen and crumbling ruins of the sycamore grove. The trees and early summer flowers grew thickly between the broken marble columns. It was a quiet and lonely place, with an air of tender melancholy; a fit place for solitary contemplation. He paused uncertainly for a moment, and then made his way smiling toward the young man who lay beneath a tree, absorbed in his own thoughts. "Good morning, cousin," he called. The young man looked up, startled from his reverie. When he saw who had addressed him, he sighed. "Is the day so young?" he mused. Benvolio laughed derisively. "What madness lengthens Romeo's hours?" "Not having that which having makes them short," was the answer. "In love?" Benvolio queried mockingly. "Out—replied his cousin shortly. "Out of love?" the other teased. Romeo shook his head. "Out of her favour where I am in love." Benvolio's smile was a taunt. To think Romeo could brood about love—but who was she? "Rosaline?" he guessed. Romeo nodded sheepishly. "Rosaline?" he sighed. And for a moment silence hung between them. "Love," observed the lover, "is a smoke raised with the fume of sighs; being purged it is a fire sparkling in lovers' eyes; being vexed it becomes a sea nourished with lovers' tears. And what else is it? A madness most discreet—a choking gall; and," he sighed again, "a preserving sweet." He thought of the other, what he had said, and with the look of one well pleased with his own wisdom, arose. Benvolio urged him to speak more of this fair Rosaline to whom he had lost his heart, and led the way to a narrow, twisted street outside the grove. So intent was Romeo upon his praise of Rosaline that he did not see the serving man walking toward them. And so absorbed was the man in a notice he held in his hand that he was unaware of the approaching young men. Benvolio stepped aside and laughed as the two collided with each other. The servant blinked in astonishment and then sheered off apologetically. Romeo smiled. "Good day, good fellow," he said kindly. "God give good day," the other answered with relief. And then, encouraged by Romeo's courtesy, he held out his paper. "I pray sir, can you read?" he asked. "I can read my own fortune in my misery," laughed Romeo. "But can you read anything you see?" questioned the servant help-

Ten Questions for a Christian

the dove house wall lulled by the gentle chorus of cooling doves. Too soon she would awaken and call her to make ready for the feast; but while her nurse dozed there was still time for the game.

As she fitted a second arrow, a voice sailed through the garden. "Nurse! Where's Juliet?" "The nurse awoke with a start. "I bade her come," she protested and then called to the girl in loud, impatient tones. "Lamb! she shouted. "Lady bird! She threw up her hands in despair. "Where's this girl?" She ran toward the lawn. Juliet dropped her bow with a sigh and followed her nurse. She curtsied as they came into Lady Capulet's presence.

"Madam," she asked, her voice soft with respect. "What is your will?" "It is this," her mother began, and stopped short. "Nurse, we talk in secret."

The nurse snorted in hurt indignation. Lady Capulet smiled. "Come, nurse," she relented, "thou mayst hear our counsel. Thou know'st my daughter's of a pretty age."

"Faith," replied the nurse, "I can tell her age unto an hour. Thou wast the prettiest babe that e'er I nursed. And I wish to live to see three married."

Lady Capulet beamed. "That marry is the very theme I came to talk of. Tell me, daughter Juliet, how stands your disposition to be married?"

"It is an honour that I dream not of," the girl answered uncertainly. "Think of marriage now," her mother advised. "The valiant Count of Paris seeks you for his love."

"Why? He's a man of wax," derided the nurse.

Lady Capulet threw her a furious glance. "Can you love the gentleman, Juliet? This night you shall behold him at our feast."

Juliet seemed at a loss for an answer.

"Come," her mother coaxed. "Can you like of Paris' love?"

Juliet spoke hesitantly. "I'll look to like," she said at last. "But no more."

Her mother smiled; so far the nurse was content. She waved Juliet and the nurse into the house so that they might make ready for the evening.

And hurrying to their homes for the same purpose went Romeo and Benvolio. "It is an art and a mystery," she looked toward the archery butt. She looked toward the nurse who sat sleeping against this same ancient feast of Capulets

SIXTY-SIX books, divided into two groups, one of 39, one of 27. The finest literature ever written in the English language. The greatest dramas, the most sublime tragedies mankind has ever known. The Bible.

Printed in every tongue, treasured in hundreds of millions of homes, the common, precious heritage of prince and pauper.

It was not always so. On this very day 400 years ago, William Tyndall, stern-mouthed, white-bearded at 44, was first strangled and then burned at a stake in the little Belgian village of Vilvorde, near Brussels.

His crime? He translated the Bible into English. He worked "to produce a translation that a scholar could approve and a ploughboy understand." His translation is the basis of the Authorised Version produced years later. Have you reaped the fruits of his suffering to the full? Do you know your Bible? Can you answer these ten questions?

1. How old was Methuselah? And what relation was he to Noah?

2. Give in sequence the ten Plagues of Egypt. What great religious festival originated from the last?

3. What meal was Christ eating when He bade farewell to the disciples? And what common superstition dates from that feast?

4. How did Absalom meet his death?

5. Who was the first of the Apostles to be martyred?

6. How did God confound the complaints of Job?

7. Where do the words: "Vanity of vanities! All is vanity" appear?

8. What is the number of the Beast of Revelation?

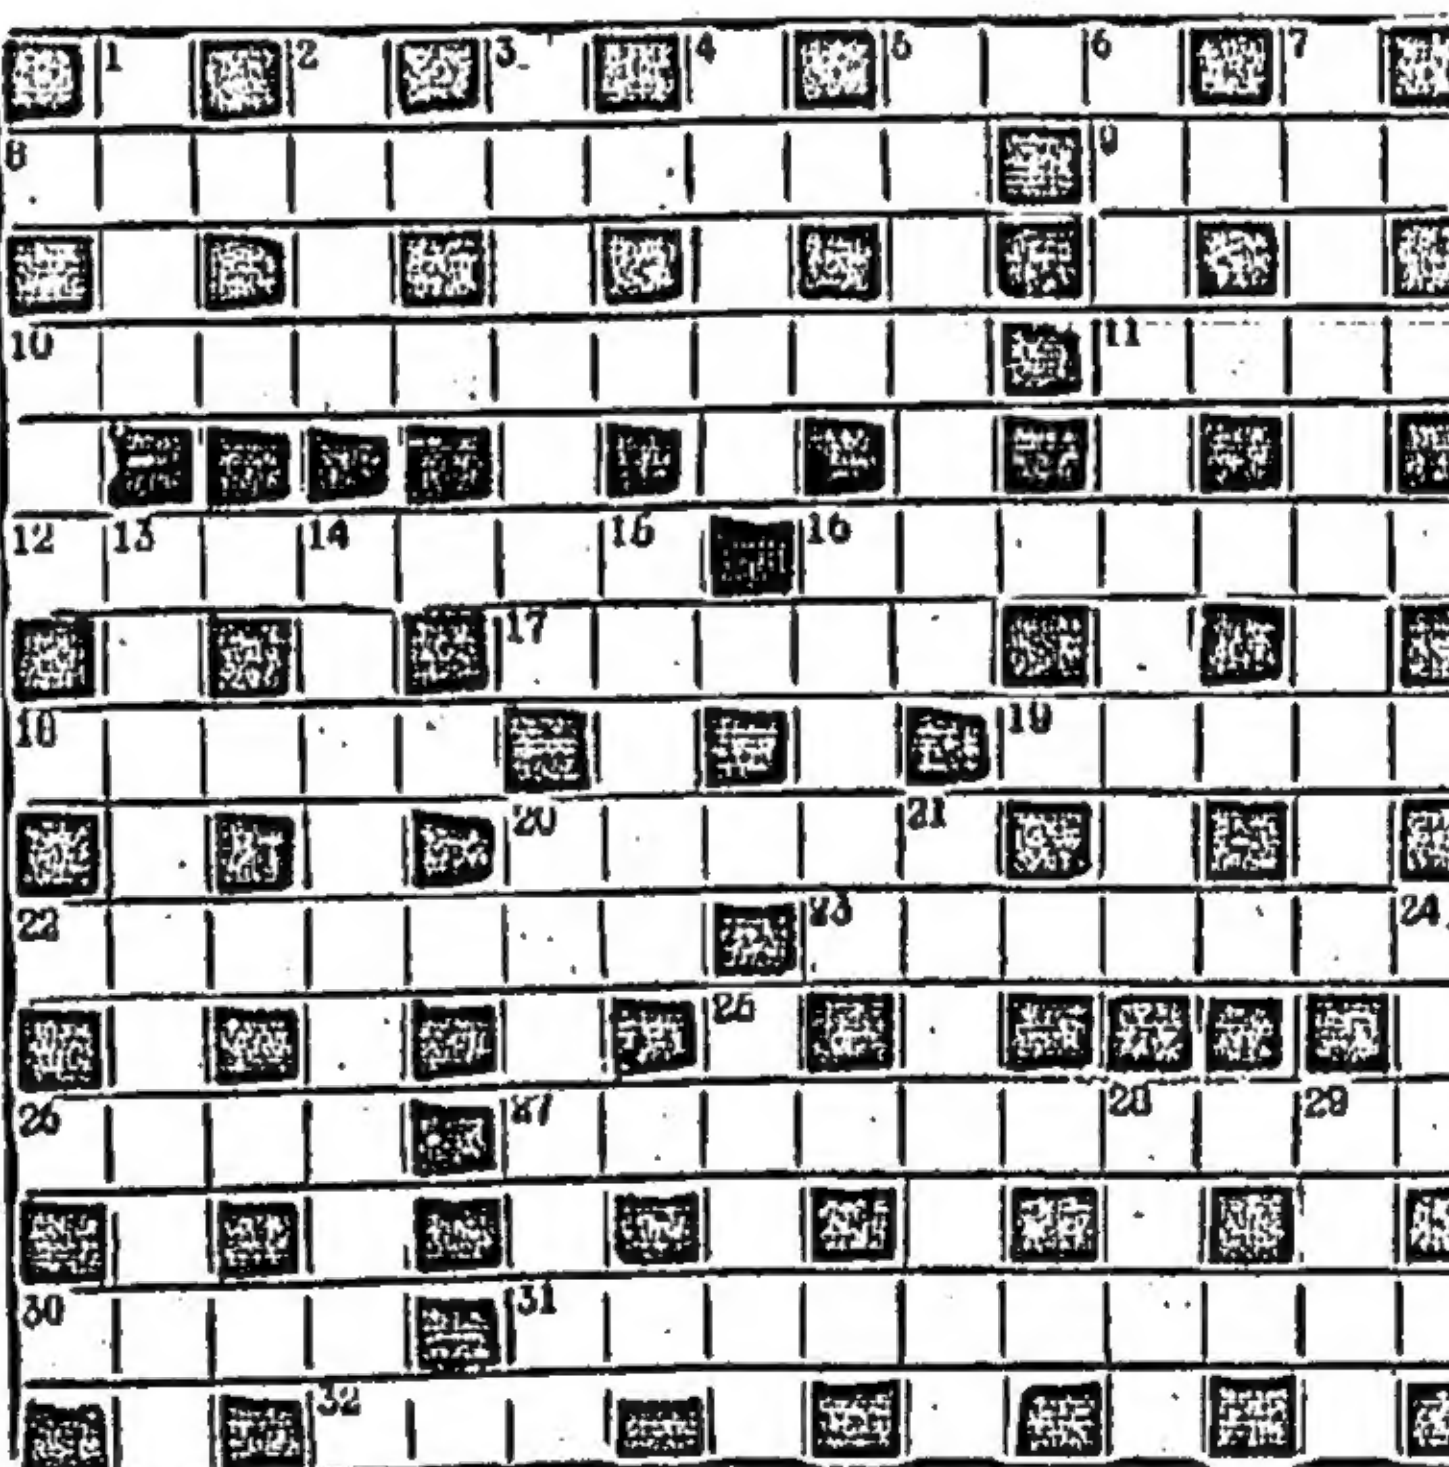

9. What is the meaning of the words: "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani." "Mene, mene, tekel, upharsin." "Golgotha."

10. Before what authorities was Christ tried before His Crucifixion? What gesture did Pilate make to absolve himself of condemning One he believed innocent?

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed Feeling You Could Push a Bus Over
The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

Bile, fatty acids, palatable laxatives and herbs purgatives are made into a mere bowl movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes the famous, sure acting Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making the bowels move. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's on the red package.

MAN IMPLICATES HIMSELF

INTERRUPTS COURT HEARING

An unusual incident occurred at the Central Magistrate's court this morning when the case of Chan Tin, 58, unemployed, who was charged with (a) distilling liquor at No. 2, Wa In Fong Lane, (b) possession of distilling apparatus, (c) possession of fermenting material and (d) possession of dutiable liquor, came before Mr. K. Keen.

As the charge was being explained to defendant someone at the rear of the court declared: "The things are mine, not his." The man who said this then came forward and stood next to the prosecuting officer, Chief Revenue Officer A. W. Grimmitt. He was then warned that in taking the blame he too might be prosecuted.

The man, named Au Tak, 58, also unemployed, replied that he did not care.

Mr. Grimmitt said as Au Tak was giving himself up he would be jointly charged with Chan. There was no question of withdrawing the charges against first defendant, who was usually found running the distilling factory.

Mr. Keen remarked that it was very silly of Au Tak to come to court.

When asked to give his address, Au Tak could not, and Mr. Grimmitt remarked that the man was obviously paid to take the blame. He asked for a 24 hours' remand in the case of the first defendant, adding that Au Tak will be formally charged with Chan.

Bail in $1,000 was fixed for first defendant on the remand being granted.

MUI-TSAI NOT REGISTERED

MARRIED WOMAN FINED

For keeping an unregistered multi-fist at 79, Hung Choi Street, Yu Pui-ying, 38, married woman, was fined $100 by Mr. E. Himmaworth at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning. The girl in question was Lai King-yu, alias Shun Tsai, 16.

Inspector H. W. Fraser, of the S. C. A., said the girl reported to the Secretary that she was an unregistered multi-fist and had been forced to leave her employer's house because she had been falsely accused of assaulting the young son. Her father had sold her to defendant when she was 12 years old for the sum of $100 in Canton currency. Since then she had been doing all kinds of work, cooking, washing, washing clothes, scrubbing floors, etc., though she took her meals with the family.

SMUGGLERS HIDE OPIUM

TWO MEN SENTENCED THIS MORNING

Before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistrate's court this morning, an unemployed man named Au Tsun-keo, aged 27, pleaded guilty to a charge of having in his possession 11 tael of raw opium.

Chief Revenue Officer A. W. Grimmitt stated that defendant was arrested on Saturday at the Wing Lok Wharf in Connaught Road West. The opium was strapped around his right foot.

Defendant was sentenced to a fine of $300, or, in default, five months' imprisonment.

Another man, Tsang Chok-yu, 30, was also charged with possession of opium. He had six tael of raw opium hidden in the soles of his shoes when arrested on Saturday at the Macao Wharf in Connaught Road West.

Accused was sentenced to a fine of $180 or ordered to go to goal for three months.

Rocket Propaganda

Madrid, Nov. 29.
Rocket propaganda has been introduced, for the first time, by the Government.

Invented by ingenious pyrotechnicians in Valencia, a rocket is fired towards enemy advance posts and releases, as it explodes, numbers of pamphlets, written in Spanish and Arabic and designed to reach the Legionnaires and Moors who are fighting for the rebels, explaining "the criminal intentions of their leaders."—Reuter Special.

Nationalists Checked

Madrid, Nov. 29.
General Emilio Kleber, so-called "mystery man" of the Spanish civil war, to-day asserted the Nationalists had lost the fight for the capital. He did not believe they could enter Madrid unless Herr Hitler or Signor Mussolini sent them reinforcements. However, he appealed to the Government.

Neutralises POISON GAS, CHECKS FIRE

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant judge at the Supreme Court, presided over the first court at the Central Magistrate's court this morning in the absence of Mr. W. Schofield, Senior Magistrate, who is on short leave.

ing a remarkable revival of the Government's offensive power. The attacks are highly significant, indicating the militiamen have obtained considerable supplies of foreign arms and ammunition.

An exceedingly well-informed quarter says these successes were obtained from countries whose names "would surprise everybody."

Further, the attacks demonstrate a careful strategy, hitherto lacking, and are obviously aimed at lessening the pressure against Madrid.

A neutral observer predicts the continuance of Loyalist attacks, saying they are likely even to move on Huesca.

"I would not be surprised if these offensives mark the beginning of a turn favourable to the Loyalists. You are going to see some interesting events in the coming weeks," he added.

Meanwhile, General Franco's drive on Madrid (at the time of writing, Sunday) has reached a standstill, apparently due to lack of manpower. Personally, says this observer, "I am convinced that if the Loyalists are able to continue severing the rebel communications with Oviedo, General Mola will be forced to withdraw his troops from other sectors and attempt to drive through the Loyalist corridor at Oviedo. I believe the Oviedan civilians' plight must be critical. They were on the verge of starvation a month ago when I visited the city and since then their communications have been effectively blocked."—United Press.

Refuse Armistice
Avila, Nov. 30.
Officials understand that two Loyalist representatives met rebel chiefs at Casa Velasquez late Friday, proposing an armistice to allow the evacuation of Madrid. The rebels are said to have refused permission.—United Press.

Consuls Executed

Lisbon, Nov. 30.
A radio message from Salamanca says Bilbao Loyalists have executed the Austrian and Paraguayan Consuls there on charges of espionage.—United Press.

Loyalist Attacks

London, Nov. 30.
Loyalists have delivered widely separated attacks on rebels at Oviedo and Talavera de la Reina, south of Madrid, and south of Toledo, signalling

United States to send them gas masks, in anticipation of extreme methods by the Nationalists as a climax to Madrid's siege, which is believed to be approaching.—United Press.

Fugitive Steamship

Gibraltar, Nov. 29.
The Spanish steamer Arnebalmedil put in here for shelter after a pursuit by three insurgent armed trawlers which fired on her in the Straits of Gibraltar.—Reuter.

Air Raids Continue

Madrid, Nov. 30.
The last day of November opened with an attack by invisible bombers, raining through an inky sky, which rained bombs on the Rosales and Moncloa sections of the city and thereafter circled the eastern outskirts.

Rebel artillery commenced to shell the Ventas section and the Loyalist guns replied by barraging rebel positions to the north and south of Madrid.—United Press.
